MICE KEEP HER AWAKE, SUES LANDLORD FOR $5,000

A lot of sleep is $5,000 worth, but that is the sum Yvonne Lambert of Brookline seeks to recover from William G. and John Codman in a suit filed today in Suffolk Superior Court because she is out, she says, many hours of slumber. She alleges the Codmans, doing business as William G. Codman & Son, No. 15 State street, renteed a house to her, but that her bedroom was so overrun with mice and vermin she could not sleep.

WOMAN, NEAR DEATH, MADE RICH BY OIL FIND

Warren, Pa., Oct. 8 (I.N.S.).—Fortune's frown tutrned to smile for Mrs. Ed Sp'itstone of Conneaut, O., today. A gas well, producing two million cubic feet an hour, was drilled in early today on property in Eldred township by David Culberson and associates. The property is owned by Mrs. Splitstone, who is now seriously ill as a result of injuries received when she was struck by an automobile.

ILLINOIS RIVER RISING AGAIN

Beardstown, Ill., Oct. 8 (I.N.S.).—Following a brief five-hour respite from thte flood, during which the watermark fell several inches, due to the breaking of more levees spreading the water over a larger area, the flood waters of the Illinois River continued to rise today. From Peoria came word that the water was rising and had buried railroad tracks beneath a two-foot blanket of water. The Chicago, Burlington & Quuincy Railroad has been compelled to suspend through service.

THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION, when it finishes hearing from Union Labor men throughout the country, will perhaps be less young and more Christian.

It forbade a representative of Union Labor to speak in a Y. M. C. A. because it did not want "controversy"—so it said.

The sort of Christianity that will not hear the arguments of workmen, but listens on hands and knees to any kind of talk by a man with a hundred millions, hasn't much Christianity about it.

THERE IS a humorous aspect to the Young Men's Christian Association, in certain places.

It limits Jewish membership to 7 per cent. of the total membership, rather poor mathematics, considering that the founder of Christianity was the son of a Jewish girl, and there-

VICTIMS TAKEN FROM JAIL CELLS AND SHOT DEAD NEAR AIKEN, S. C.

Aiken, S. C., Oct. 8 (A.P.).—A mob early today stormed the Aiken Jail, seized three negroes, one of them a woman, and shot them to death in a pine thicket just beyond the city limits.

The victims were Clarence and Demmond Lowman and the latter's sister, Bertha Lowman. They were on trial a second time in connection with the murder of Sheriff H. H. Howard of Aiken county, shot to death April 25, 1925, when, accompanied by several deputies, he went to raid the home of Sam Lowman, father of Demmond and Bertha Lowman and uncle of Clarence Lowman.

On their first trial the Negroes were convicted but a new trial was granted by the State Supreme court. This trial began early this week.

Yesterday, Special Judge S. T. Lanham, presiding, directed a verdict of "not guilty" for Demon Lowman, on the charge of conspiracy to murder.

The mob broke into the jail about 3 o'clock this morning, overpowered Rupert Taylor, jailer, and Sheriff Nollie Robinson, and spirited the Negroes away in an automobile.

Their bodies were found several hours later. Each had been shot several times.

BRAIN SPECIALIST IS TREATING 'PEACHES'

New York, Oct. 8.—"Peaches" Browning, runaway Cinderella bride is undergoing treatment for a nervous disorder, it has developed.

This disorder is said to have developed since she was married to Tdward W. Browning.

"Peaches" has been under the care of Dr. George A. Blakeslee, a specialist in mental and nervous diseases. How serious "Peaches" ailment is, Dr. Blakeslee declined to say.

"Peaches" was brought to him by her mother, Mrs. Catherine Heenan, after Dr. Blakeslee had been recommended by another physician as a specialist.

Browning, the millionaire husband, said he wasn't the least bit interested today when he was told that one of her friends had located her. And he added that he didn't care much when he was informed about a statement attributed to her that she was "through" with him.

Browning, however, was frankly

DENY O'BRIEN WRIT TO BAR KEENE OFF BALLOT

District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien, opponent of Charles G. Keene in a recount battle for the Republican nomination for district attorney, failed today in an effort to get an injunction to keep Keene's name off the November ballot.

Judge Pierce of the Supreme Court denied a motion by Assistant District Attorney Alpert appearing for O'Brien.

Alpert indicated further injunction proceedings might be started.

Judge Pierce held that a restraining order could be granted only in an equity case and that the present proceedings constituted an action at law. He will hear arguments in the recount fight Monday.

O'Brien sought an injunction restraining Frederick W. Cook, Secretary of State, from placing Keene's name on the ballot, and asked that his own name appear as Republican candidate.

Alpert told the court he had asked Secretary of State Cook to delay printing the ballots until the full bench of the Supreme Court decided the issue. Cook was willing, Alpert said, but suggested he apply to the court.

Alpert said that he might seek a bill in equity to restrain Cook from placing Keene's name on the ballot, and Judge Pierce allowed a motion joining Cook as a defendant in the pending action.

SHOOT 2 IN RUM FIGHT

Burlington, Vt., Oct. 8 (A.P.)—Vermont and New York police are looking for occupants of a large touring car and motorcicle who early today shot and seriously wounded Customs Agent E. D. Webb of St. Albans and Prohibition Agent Murray Tucker of Brattleboro.

The officers had twice stopped an automobile from New York while searching for a load of liquor being smuggled from Canada. The touring car escaped from the customs men at Munson Flats, ten miles north of here, after which they gave chase and overtook it and the cycle a few miles north of the city. The autoist opened fire and escaped.

A Burlington truck driver passing the scene carried the wounded men to a local hospital where they underwent emergency operations. Webb is in a serious condition with a wound in the abdomen, while Tucker's hand and forearm are also badly injured. Webb is hurt, probably fatally.

ACCUSE 'UNCLE OF WEST END' OF $51,558 THEFT IN BIG CREDIT SCHEME

Charged with victimizing business and professional men, clerks, laborers and men and women in all walks of life in Boston in a gigantic credit union scheme, Samuel J. Gordon, known for years as the "Uncle of the West End," was arrested today and held in bail of $100,000.

Shortages totaling more than $220,000 and chiefly traceable to Gordon have been discovered, according to the story told Judge Creed in Municipal Court, in the accounts of one credit union, the Eagle Investment Company, of which Gordon is president.

With more than 900 members the investment company handled $1,000,000 annually during the past ten years, with Gordon in practically complete control, it was said.

Gordon was described as prime organizer in more than a dozen other credit unions, all of them in the West End district, where his arrest caused a furore.

For twelve years, doing business at a dilapidated little office in Causeway street, he has been operating as money-lender and investment genius, according to the tale unfolded in court by lawyers who, though appearing as investigators of the condition of the Eagle Investment Company, were also among the alleged victims.

OFFERED BIG INTEREST

Judge Creed was informed that Gordon offered shareholders of the company, who put up capital ranging from $500 to more than $18,000 each, from 20 to 25 per cent. interest on their capital but failed to meet his promise even in part unless confronted with insistent demands.

For Gordon's own benefit, it was declared, went the invested funds which were intended for use in loans on real estate and other security to members of the union. All who borrowed became members.

Just where the money went, in what is was invested, whether or not it reposes as cold cash in some Boston bank under an obscure name police and other investigators want to know, but have been unable to unravel the mystery.

Gordon is specifically charged in the arrest warrant with larceny of $51,556.83 of the funds of the Eagle Investment Company. He pleaded not guilty.

A. F. OF L. INCENSED AT SPEECH OF 'Y' OFFICIAL

Detroit, Oct. 8 (I.N.S.)—The whirlpool that since Tuesday has been raging in the American Federation of Labor convention around the Detroit Y. M. C. A. today had drawn into its vortex Sherwood Eddy, international secretary for Asia of the "Y" organization.

Labor officials and delegates today were openly charging that Eddy had taken advantage of the Federation to obtain the floor and deliver a propaganda address in behalf of European debt cancellation and recognition of Soviet Russia.

When Eddy was extended the courtesy of the platform at his own request, it was with the belief that he had come in an effort to repudiate on behalf of the Y. M. C. A. the action of the Detroit body in cancelling an invitation for President William Green to address a "Y" meeting Sunday afternoon.

APPLAUDED AT FIRST.

When he was introduced by President Green as "one who is in sympathy with the humane work and principles of the American Federation of Labor," the delegates applauded Eddy.

Eddy's first words, however, were to disclaim that he was speaking in the capacity of a "Y" official, but as an individual who had been to Europe for the past Summer as a member of an unofficial labor fact-finding commission. For nearly an hour he held the floor as he poured forth the European propaganda.

The shock and surprise of Federation officials and delegates was disclosed, and Mrs. Child declined to make any comment, the despatches stated.

The arrest was made in the courthouse corridor by Police Inspector John A. Dorsey, serving the warrant that was issued by Municipal Court Justice Sullivan on Curley's application.

At the time the former ambassador's suit was withdrawn in Pennsylvania Sept. 21, Mrs. Child was reported to be in New York City so it is apparent she hurried to Paris immediately thereafter and started proceedings on her own account.

The couple have been estranged for more than a year, their differences being due, according to friends, to literary rivalry. Mrs. Child, the mother of two children, desired to pursue the same career as her husband, and is said to have declared that she would achieve it at all costs.

Various magazine articles from her pen have appeared since their marriage, frequently in the same periodical to which her husband is a regular contributor. Recently Mrs. Child wrote a book.

The former ambassador, who at one time was editor of a magazine, is said by his friends to have protested that one author in the family was enough. He then added insult to injury, they claim, by intimating that his wife would never set the world afire with her writings, and that she was indebted to him for what success she had achieved.

Mrs. Child retorted in kind, and one word borrowed another, to culminate in the wife setting up her own establishment. Child's divorce suit, charging mental cruelty, followed.

Last month the suit was withdrawn, and friends of the couple in Washington and elsewhere were confident that the difficulties of the couple had been ironed out. Apparently such was not the case, and Mrs. Child has now taken the initiative

When Browning was asked if he knew that some one had "found" Peaches, he turned to the reporter and said:

"Do you believe her when she says she's 'through' with you; that she's been 'persecuted' and her life was made a 'terror,?" Browning was asked.

"I don't know and I don't care," repeated the millionaire.

PEACHES' STATEMENT.

"Peaches" is said to have been found with her mother and seveeral friends in a small place not far from New York and she is said to have made this statement:

"I'm through with Browning. I am bitterly disappointed in my married life and I realize that I made a grave mistake. I've been persecuted and my life made a terror."

Then she aded that, contrary to all the stories about her, she had never got the fortune in jewels that she was supposed to from Browning.

Meantime some members of the mob entered the jail through a window in a part of the building used as the jailer's residence and succeeded in obtaining the prisoners.

Sheriff Robinson said he followed the mob, but was outdistanced because he was driving a small automobile, while the lynchers were in faster cars. He turned back near the city limits.

sum on short notice. Gordon was held while friends scurried to aid him. Gordon is a middle-aged man, living in Walnut street, Roxbury, with one office in Causeway street and the other, which is the office of the Eagle Investment Company, at No. 62 Chambers street.

WON NAME OF "UNCLE."

"Uncle" he was called, it was said, because to him streamed thousands of West Enders seeking loans, large and small, to carry out business trades or to tide workingmen and their families over tight places.

The recently enacted State law requiring that all credit unions have charters under control of the bank commissioner proved Gordon's undoing. For the first time in ten years the books of the company were audited, this being necessary in order to apply for the charter.

Attorneys Samuel Brenner, Samuel Segal and Samuel Woodfin declared in court that the alleged shortage was quickly discovered in books that Gordon alone had assumed charge of during the entire history of the concern. Once it was discovered a search was launched for real estte and other securities that should have been under control of the credit union, but none could be found.

Questioning of Gordon, it was declared, was unsatisfactory, and the police were immediately brought into the case while the probe of the company's books and records continued, with the result that the alleged shortage increased.

Another man is sought for arrest, a warrant having been issued, and he is said to have admitted to investigators that he can explain $13,000 of the missing amount.

Treasurer Diamond of the Eagle Investment Company, describing himself as one of the victims, placed his personal loss at $18,000.

COMPANY BIG SUCCESS

The "Eagle," as it was popularly known, was a big success from its inception, according to the statements of the investigators to Judge Creed. To its office streamed prospective borrowers and the orignal shareholders saw prospects of excellent profits.

Under the law all borrowers became members until their loans were repaid, many hundreds thus passing on and off the rolls of membership, with approximately 900 on the list at all times. The estimate of $1,000,000 business done annually was made by leading shareholders of the company from a general knowledge of the scope of the loans.

plainly evident from the outset of his speech. President Green politely thanked Eddy for his remarks, but his flushed face and the vigorous pounding of his gavel plainly disclosed the displeasure he and the convention felt over thus being "taken in."

The effect was to fan up the flame of feeling today against the "Y" that had been subdued only by tactful handling.

The convention yesterday afternoon made its first direct move in its announced warfare on Detroit's "open shop" labor system by unanimously adopting a resolution proposed by the metal trades division of the Federation "to inaugurate a general organizing campaign in the automobile industry at the earliest possible date."

Eighty per cent. of this industry, the third largest in the United States, is centred in and around Detroit, and it represents the major part of Detroit's industrial life.

A half dozen other resolutions to further organization activitier in general were adopted also, but none was of particular significance.

The convention this morning resumed the hearing of committee repor on pending resolutions.

ENWRIGHT SET FREE ON BAIL

Municipal Court ' Brickel made satisfactory arrangements for putting up the bond money.

Arraignment of Enwright was completed in three minutes in a small courtroom where only the principals, their attorneys, a couple of friends of each, newspapermen and two or three spectators were present.

"We waive the reading of the complaint and examination," said Attorney Michael J. Sullivan, counsel for Enwright, addressing Judge Bolster. "I feel that the time of the court should not be taken up as the court is already overworked."

"Do you claim that anything more than nominal bail should be imposed?" asked Judge Bolster, turning to former Assistant District Attorney A. C. Webber, attorney for Curley.

"No, your Honor," said Webber, "I have been assured by counsel on the other side that he will have his client in court at the proper time."

Arrest of the publisher was a formal matter, the time of serving the warrant having been fixed by agreement of counsel. After service he walked into court, accompanied by counsel, with the police inspector following.

Young Stillman Confesses He Doesn't Care for Social Register, Either

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 8.—"I don't think much of people in the social register."

With these words, James ("Bud") Stillman, Princeton senior, totally admitted all the charms and graces and finishing school culture of society's buds faded into nothingness before the dulcet notes of the mouth organ which his backwoods little Scotch-Canadian fiancee, Lena Wilson, delights in playing.

Miss Wilson, formerly in his mother's employ, isn't a musician in the sense that the ultra-fashionable world knows musicians, "Bud" admits, but she does play wonderfully on the mouth organ and the accordian.

WHEN SHE WAS ELEVEN.

"You must remember that these are the musical instruments most familiar to her country," "Bud" suggested.

Young Stillman, son of James A. Stillman, sat on the radiator of his three-room suite, four flights up in Reunion Hall, one of the oldest dormitories at Princeton.

In answer to various questions he said:

"I met Miss Wilson first when she was eleven. I was just a kid and so was she, but we became friends when I went up to mother's place at Grand Anse, Quebec, for Summers. We used to roam around through the woods together, and fish and hunt.

"Then, somehow, a year ago, it suddenly seemed that we became the most important persons in each other's lives and we admitted it and that's how it happened

"She dances, though, but mostly waltzes and the old-fashioned square dances, the steps of which she taught him last Summer. She excels in hunting, canoeing and fishing, and plays—the mouth organ and accordion."

Bud grinned when asked if Miss Wilson was fascinated with pretty clothes, and replied:

"I don't know. She's never had any."

But when it comes to cooking? "Oh, boy!" was his answer to the question.

"She did all kinds of things," he

GASTON FINDS WAY TO LEGALIZE BEER

PLAN GIVEN O.K. BY BIG LAWYERS

Government Control of Light Beverages Would Make Dry Law Repeal Unnecessary

Colonel William A. Gaston, Democratic candidate for Governor on a platform calling for modification of prohibition, today made public the draft of a bill by which it would be possible to legalize light wines and beer without the necessity of repealing the Eighteenth Amendment.

Eminent lawyers in statements which he presents to the voters of Massachusetts, support him in his view that there is no necessity to alter the United States Constitution to modify Prohibition.

GOVERNMENT CONTROL.

His bill, of which Hon. Nathan Matthews, Boston attorney and former mayor, is the author, calls for government control of the distribution of wines and beer for consumption in the home.

Moorfield Storey, Thomas J. Boynton, Albert E. Pillsbury and Rufus B. Dodge, all lawyers of national reputation, while not going on record either as for or against Prohibition modification, back Col. Gaston in his claim that simple legislation by Congress can accomplish what the "wet" candidate for governor desires.

The Constitution Liberty League of Massachusetts, through its attorney, Julian Codman, supplied Col. Gaston with the legal opinions backing his claim.

LAWYERS FIND WAY.

"Some citizens have believed and still believe that manufacture and sale of the now prohibited beverages without amendment or repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment is impossible," said Col. Gaston. "This matter has been studied with care by many leading legal authorities and they are unanimous—simple legislation in Congress is all that is required."

According to the opinions of the lawyers, the Eighteenth Amendment is not completely self-executing. It has some indirect effect upon civil rights and remedies, they declared, but without legislation by Congress for its enforcement the amendment is a dead letter, as are most other Constitutional amendments without supplementary enforcement statutes. This enforcement legislation can just as easily prohibit in part, as the "wets" desire, as prohibit completely as the Volstead law does.

TOURING THE STATE.

Colonel Gaston, Chairman Charles H. McGlue of the Democratic State Committee and other party leaders left Boston today for an organization tour of the State. Tonight a rally will be held in Westfield, home town of Joseph B. Ely, who refused the nomination for Lieutenant Governor, after being defeated at the primaries.

GIRL, 12, ARRESTED WITH AGED MAN IN HUB

Lucy Paule, 12, of Youngstown, O., is held by police with Thomas Buchis, 66, who brought her here from the Ohio city. They are to be returned there. The child told police he had forced her to go with him, but "had been kind to her." She entered the Mt. Bowdoin Grammar School as the man's daughter. —Boston Evening American Staff Photo

SCHOOL GIRL IS 'CHARMED' BY MAN OF 66

How a 66-year-old widower exerted a strange charm over a 12-year-old schoolgirl was revealed here today when police arrested Thomas Buchis and Lucy Paule, both missing from Youngstown, O., in their room in Staniford street.

Although her companion threatened her to make her come to Boston with him, the girl told police he treated her with such kindness when they got here that she was content to remain with him.

The two were held for Youngstown authorities, who have been hunting them since they left that place on August 29.

Buchis first told police that the girl was his daughter, and while in his presence the girl confirmed the story. Later when Buchis was sent to a cell, the girl confessed her name, and said that she was the daughter of Samuel Paule of East Youngstown, O. A letter which Lucy wrote to her mother put authorities on the trail.

"He told me he'd kill me if I didn't come with him," the girl told the police. "We came to Boston and he found a room. When we got to Boston he was very kind. He was like a daddy. He bought me clothes and food. I did the cooking. He took me to theatres when I wanted to go. He worked in a restaurant all day. I was always dressed in my best when he came home."

When school started Lucy entered the Mt. Bowdoin Grammar school, West End, a Buchis' daughter. Since coming here she claims she wrote to her mother several times but received only one answer. She gave the letters to Buchis to mail, she told police, adding, "I'll bet he didn't mail them."

Buchis said that he was a widower, that his marriage had been childless and that he had always longed for a child. "That is probably why I was so fond of her," he said. He told police that he feared going back to Youngstown because of the sentiment that may have been aroused against him.

CHAPLIN QUIT? CAN'T SAYS WIFE

[illegible] Francisco, Oct. 8 (I.N.S.).—Reports emanating from London that Charles Chaplin would soon retire from the motion pictures were scouted today by his wife, the former Lita Grey, who is visiting relations here.

"Charlie will never quit the movies," she said. "Why, I don't believe he could quit. He is too utterly wrapped up in the work.

YES, AS A BILL POSTER SHE'S A GREAT PIANIST

SHE NEEDS NO BED TO SPREAD SHEETS
Ethel Leginska, world famous Boston pianist, whose eccentric "disappearing act" amazed everybody, has turned bill poster, as you may note from this photograph, taken today as she spread the sheets and stuck 'em down with oozy, gooy paste in front of Mechanics Building. The posters advertise the Boston Philharmonic Orchestra's concert. —Boston Evening American Staff Photo

SALEM WOMAN HURT WHEN AUTO OVERTURNS

An automobile operated by Miss Martha Hogan of No. 47 Bridge street, Salem, skidded on East High street, near the First Congregational Church, Newbury, and overturned.

Mrs. Mary Hogan, mother of the operator, was taken to the Anna Jaques Hospital, where it was found that her collarbone had been broken.

HINGHAM MAN FOUND DEAD OF POISON IN AUTO

Crumpled in the back seat of a sedan parked on Sandy Beach, Cohasset, the body of Baxter R. Still, undertaker of Water street, Hingham, was found early today by Police Chief William McArthur of Cohasset.

The body was identified by Medical Examiner John C. Frasier of East Weymouth, an acquaintance.

Dr. Frasier, after a superficial examination, gave a tentative verdict of death by poisoning.

Still disappeared from his home yesterday, according to the police, and on seven different occasions was ordered last night by Cohasset patrolmen to take his car off the beach.

He complied with each request, but returned again each time after the officer had proceeded on his way. After the seventh time, the patrolman did not again traverse that section of the beat and it was eight hours later when Chief McArthur, sighting the car with no one apparently around, investigated and found the dead man inside.

No one was with Still on any of the occasions when his car was sighted, the police said.

In the machine when found today, Medical Examiner Frasier discovered a bottle marked "Windshield Cleaner," with a small portion of the fluid remaining, but whether this substance was the poison taken by Still or administered to him could not be determined from the first examination.

FIREMEN FREED OF LAMP THEFT

Firemen John J. Leary and David Cleary, charged with the larceny of a lamp during a Canal street fire, were found not guilty and discharged by Judge Sullivan in Municipal Court today.

Patrolman Mayer, now on the traffic squad, but at the time of the fire attached to the Hanover street division, said on the morning of August 19 he saw Leary lower a lamp from the William Leavens Company's second floor on Canal street. He said Cleary was waiting for the lamp on the street. Both men denied the charges and Judge Sullivan found them not guilty.

UB SHIVERS IN COLD WAVE FROM WEST

elieve it or not—Greater Boston experienced the lowest temperature of the current Fall at 7 o'clock today, when the mercury slumped to 4 above.

Within the next two hours, the rising sun tempered the chill enough to push the column four degrees higher, but the weatherman warns New England at large that the shivery snap will continue till tomorrow.

All sections of the country, east of the Mississippi, felt the sudden drop in temperature, particularly Michigan, where frosts were reported through the night.

Forecast for Boston and vicinity: Fair tonight and tomorrow;

5,990 Gallons of Wine "Source of Expense"

Fresno, Cal., Oct. 8 (A.P.)—Declaring an estate consisting solely of 5,990 gallons of wine, is a source of expense, trouble and danger to the custodian as well as the minor heirs, Katherine Gould, the executrix, has filed a petition in court asking authority to destroy the liquor. Belief that wine sales will never be legalized, caused her to file the petition, she said.

BUD SAYS LENA DOESN'T DRINK OR SMOKE

said. "She was mother's housekeeper and she also acted as interpreter for mother when she wanted to give orders to the gardener or other servants who spoke only French-Canadian."

It was suggested:

"Possibly when she becomes your wife she will have to learn the social graces in order to take her place with the rest of the social register."

He looked quietly and keenly at his interviewer and said:

"Oh, not necessarily. I don't think much of the people in the social register."

The wedding will take place in the early Summer, and next year the young couple will probably set up housekeeping in Cambridge or Boston, for "Bud" is going to Harvard to study medicine.

Young Stillman is devoting himself entirely to his studies this year, forswearing athletics. He is an exceptionally good water poloist, but will not play this season.

INTERESTED IN SCIENCE.

He is much interested in scientific research, but said he might take up general practice or specialize on children's diseases. He expects to spend four years at Harvard and two in a hospital.

Bud paid for the engagement ring Miss Wilson now wears with his own funds, his father, James A. Stillman, revealed yesterday.

Mr. Stillman confirmed reports that Miss Wilson had worked for Mrs. Stillman, but said it was not correct to call her a servant, as it was custom in the Grand Anse region for neighboring families to help out each other when needed.

CHOSEN TO WELCOME QUEEN MARIE

NAMED BY GOVERNOR
Greeting a queen will be the delectable task of Mrs. William F. Whitehouse, left, and Mrs. Kenneth P. Budd, Newport society leaders, chosen by Governor Pothier to represent Rhode Island as members of the reception committee that will extend the welcome of America to Queen Marie of Roumania when she arrives in New York.

QUEEN MARIE IS KEPT ON JUMP

Paris, Oct. 8.—Queen Marie's days in Paris are extremely busy, as the Rumanian consort combines social activities with shopping trips in preparation for her forthcoming visit to the United States.

Most of her three days in the French capital have been taken up with shopping trips, but she has found time to be hostess at an informal luncheon and she has attended both the movies and the theatre several times.

A number of friends have called up the Queen, and she has made time in her busy program to receive and entertain them.

WILL SEE CAROL.

The Queen will see her son Carol, the deposed Crown Prince, some time before her departure on the Leviathan next Tuesday, her aide-de-camp admitted today.

Prince Nicholas, Carol's younger brother, who will accompany his mother to America, has gone to London to see the tailors and do some shopping. He will return tomorrow.

The Grand Duchess Cyril of Russia, Marie's sister, is returning at the same time from Brittany to see the Queen before her departure.

Among those calling on Marie today was Joseph E. Sheedy, European director of the United States Lines, which ocrate the Leviathan.

BEATRICE CANCELS PASSAGE.

Princess Beatrice, the Queen's sister, arrived from England to make known her decision not to accompany Queen Marie to the United States. Princess Beatrice said she had cancelled her passage as she had come to the conclusion she could not remain away from her children for such a long period. Princess Beatrice has three sons, the youngest of whom is thirteen.

For her third theatrical performance in as many nights, Queen Marie chose the operetta "Ciboulette," which tells the story of the second empire.

The Queen, despite the activity of her days and nights, doesn't show any strain, and is glowingly anticipant of her trip to the United States. Her wardrobe is rapidly assuming immense proportions.

ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF X-RAY TUBE THEFT

James J. Currie, 42, an employe in the X-ray room of the Peter Brent Brigham Hospital was arrested last night by Boston police inspectors on a warrant charging him with the larceny of X-ray tubes and films from the hospital to the value of $490.

CHICAGO POLICE RUM INQUIRY UNDER WAY

Chicago, Oct. 8 (A.P.)—Federal operatives under A. P. Madden, head of the special intelligence unit, today started a government investigation into liquor charges involving members of the Chicago police department.

Patrick Roch, ace of government sleuths, who supplied the evidence which led to indictment of seventy-nine Cicero men, including the Mayor and chief of police, opened the inquiry when he obtained a subpoena duces tecum calling upon Chief of Police Collins to supply him with records of police activity in handling liquor cases.

LISBON ACTS TO STOP POSSIBLE REVOLUTION

Lisbon, Portugal, Oct. 8 (A.P.)—The Lisbon garrison is confined to barracks as a precautionary measure while the authorities seek Colonel Joao De Almeida, who was recently dismissed from the governorship of the Cape Verde Islands following the issuance of a circular to various army divisions proposing him for the premiership.

Colonel De Almeida denied he had anything to do with issuance of the circular, but, instead of presenting himself at the war ministry as ordered, he went into hiding. It is announced he will be treated as a deserter.

How Do They Get That Way? Hub Girls Diet!

Boston girls don't agree with Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta, Ga., schools, who declares that modern girls are "starving themselves sick to get thin" and that the straight-line fad will be the ruination of the nation.

It is possible to be slim without starving one's self, the Hub girls asserted today in refutation of Supt. Sutton's contention. The secret is a carefully selected and balanced menu.

"If you want to be up to date and wear stylish clothes, you've got to diet," said Miss Florence Garland, New England Conservatory of Music student. "No breakfasts for me, nor hearty dinners. I have only one full meal a week and that's on Sunday."

Miss Ferguson, who weighs 114 pounds, has cultivated a taste for "light lunches," and dieting is no hardship for her, she said.

"Occasionally I take a glass of orange juice in the morning and then I do not take nourishment until noon, when I indulge in a bowl of soup or an egg. For dinner at night a sandwich satisfies me. I never, never eat deserts or candy."

Miss Dorothy Kelly, another Conservatory student, said:

"I only weigh 94 pounds and am proud of it. One hearty meal a day is enough for me. I consider cereal and cocoa for breakfast quite a feast. Then at noon I choose soup, bread and cocoa, but I never drink coffee. I usually get quite reckless at night and eat a full meal with meat and potatoes, although I lay off deserts."

Irene Cox, who boasts an ideal "straight-line" figure, balanced at an even hundred pounds, said she does not diet, but neither does she let her taste for fancy dishes run riot with her form. She chooses coffee and toast to start the day, a salad at noon and a satisfying dinner to wind up the day.

Fish at night is the dinner choice of Beatrice Sewell, 118 pounds. Either salmon or sardines, with a salad and fruit for desert, is her regular nightly fare.

"One slice of bacon for breakfast, a soft boiled egg and one piece of dry toast with a glass of water is more than enough for me," she declared. "Luncheon consists of soup, sardines and tea. No sweets or deserts, of course."

Pretty Doris Beake, Burdett Business College student, is a bit more liberal with her menu. Although her first meal consists only of dry toast, egg and a cup of tea, dinner is quite a workingman's meal, with meats, vegetables, French fried potatoes, rolls and tea.

NEW OFFER FOR MUSCLE SHOAL

Washington, Oct. 8.—(I.N.S.)—A new offer for leasing the government's Muscle Shoals project will be submitted to Congress next Fall by a group of New York capitalists and engineers, it was announced here today, by C. Bascom Slemp, former secretary to the President.

The proposal, to be known as the Farmers' Federated offer, will involve a financial investment by the group of from $20,000,000 to $80,000,000, Slemp said.

He added that the proposal would involve a better financial return to the government than any of those heretofore submitted and likewise a larger guarantee of nitrate production for the manufacture of fertilizer.

A Little Trip That Leads to Big Savings

Price Alone Doesn't Tell the Story

Everyone knows that price alone doesn't tell the whole story about furniture buying—but what every buyer should be interested in is in getting real value for his money. This low rent store operates on the idea that you are entitled to the very best that your money can buy.

Because of our low overhead, we don't have to cut the quality nor charge you more than the furniture is worth; we simply lessen that big item of expense—RENT—and pass the saving to you in both the quality of the furniture and lower prices.

Prospective brides will do well to let us settle the question of furniture for them. Moller's specializes in HOME OUTFITS. Here you can outfit your home at the price you can best afford to pay.

GARY, 80, HEARS FROM COOLIDGE

New York, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Elbert H. Gary is eighty years old today, but his birthday is just another working day for the chairman of the United States Steel Corporation.

Mr. Gary has been in the steel business twenty-eight years and was a lawyer for thirty years before that. He organized the Federal Steel Company, backed by J. P. Morgan, in 1898 and three years later negotiated a $492,000,000 deal that brought the Carnegie interests into the combine. The new industrial colossus was capitalized at $892,550,000 and was called the United States Steel Corporation Its capital is now more than a billion dollars.

President Coolidge sent Mr. Gary a birthday message saying: "That you retain your active interest in public affairs is worthy of high commendation. My hearty congratulations on your birthday and best wishes for continued health, happiness and opportunity for usefulness."

PIG WOMAN IN COURT AGAINST DI MARTINI

New York, Oct. 8—Mrs. Jane Gibson, the "Pig woman" of the Hall-Mills murder investigation, appeared before Justice Callaghan in the Brooklyn Supreme Court today as one o fthe State's principal witnesses at the habeas corpus hearing of Felix Di Martini, Manhattan private detective.

Mrs. Gibson was brought here from New Brunswick, with William Phillips and another witness, by Inspector John J. Underwood, chief of the detectives in charge of the investigation. All three of the witnesses are alleged by the prosecution to have been threatened and intimatd by Di Martini when he was employed in the Hall interest four years ago.

According to her story, Mrs. Gibson pointed a shotgun at Di Martini when he visited her farm and told her to leave town, and gave him one minute to leave her farm.

John H. Hinton, attorney for Di Martini, secured the new writ of habeas corpus earlier in the day. It called for Di Martini to appear before Justice Callaghan to test the validity of an extradition warrant signed by Governor Smith yesterday.

SAYS KLAN 'SEVERED' INDIANA FROM UNION

By COURT ASHER.

Copyright 1926, by the Boston Evening American Publishing Company.

Chicago, Oct. 8.—"The Ku Klux Klan in Indiana," by Court Asher, of which the first chapter is presented by the Boston Evening American today, is the most amazing expose ever published by an American newspaper.

Court Asher, the author, formerly the king kleagle of the Indiana Klan, reveals for the first time how the Klan leaders ruled with an all-powerful hand the affairs of the State; how "the flaming cross" supplanted the "Stars and Stripes."

The author of this amazing story was not only king kleagle of the Klan, but he was at one time personal investigator employed by D. C. Stephenson, one-time grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, now serving a life sentence in the State penitentiary at Michigan City, for the murder of Madge Oberholzer.

For two years D. C. Stephenson was the absolute ruler of the State of Indiana.

A high-powered salesman, who came from no one knows where, "Steve," as he was known to all his friends, in twelve months rose to a position of power such as has seldom been wielded by any individual in these United States.

Under his direction the State of Indiana virtually withdrew itself from the Union.

The flaming cross supplanted the Stars and Stripes; the tribunals of the "Invisible Empire" supplanted those organized under the constitution of the State and Federal governments; a high official, who looked to "Steve" for his orders, was placed in office in Indianapolis, and "Steve's" henchmen occupied every "key" position in every legislative and law enforcement office in the State.

HOPES FOR PARDON

Stephenson is today in the penitentiary in Michigan City. Not unlike a modern Frankenstein, "Steve" built up a machine that finally turned upon him and devoured him.

He is waiting—still waiting—for Governor Jackson to pardon him out. And he will wait—a long time. "Steve" was sentenced to state's prison for life.

The last 12 months have seen a great change in Indiana. All through the state honest citizens have risen in revolt against the Klan.

All that held the Indiana Klan together was D. C. Stephenson. With "Steve's" downfall, the organization rapidly went to pieces. The Klan in Indiana today is only a pitiful remnant of the once powerful organization whose word was law throughout Hoosierdom.

The queerest part of it all is the fact that Stephenson, when he was at the height of his power, was not a klansman. "Steve" became kingpin in Indiana following his break with Hiram Wesley Evans, the imperial wizard, and Bossart, the grand dragon.

That was in Ohio and "Steve" went back to Indiana, a rank outsider, and gathered his friends about him—klansmen all—and proceeded to set up an empire of his own.

NOT ANTI-CATHOLIC

"Steve" was unalterably opposed to that part of the Klan program directed against "Roman Catholicism."

"We are making a great mistake," he declared time and time again. "If ever the Klan is destroyed it is that mistake that will destroy it."

He planned, in "The Nobles of the North," to incorporate all of the good features of the Klan and to direct a stream of hate against all of the features that he considers undesirable.

In Klan Story

SLAIN IN INDIANA

D. C. Stephenson, ex-Klan grand dragon, serving a life term for the death of Madge Oberholtzen (above), figures prominently in the expose of the Klan in Indiana which starts today in the Boston Evening American.

There is little doubt but that he would have been successful—and, being successful he would have aligned the north and west against the south, reopened old wounds, revived old hatreds and, no doubt, worked unutterable damage to the peace and prosperity of the United States.

D. C. Stephenson's one great ambition was to put "his man" in the chair as President of the United States. His one great wish was to be "the man behind the throne," the man from whom the President of the United States would take his orders! Indeed, no man ever was more ambitious. And certainly no man ever appeared more likely to achieve his ends.

CONTROLLED STATE

He controlled the State absolutely. The grand juries of every county were composed of klansmen. Petit juries for the trial of criminal and civil cases were composed of klansmen selected by Klan commissioners. County prosecutors were klansmen. Judges were klansmen.

Mayors, sheriffs, chiefs of police and Federal officials in many parts of the State were klansmen. Most of Indiana's representatives in Congress were klansmen.

The "White Caps" ruled the State. Those who opposed them were indicted by Klan grand juries on trumped charges, prosecuted by Klan prosecutors, found guilty by Klan juries, sentenced by Klan judges and imprisoned in Klan-controlled penitentiaries.

Throughout the State men turned no longer to courts of law for adjudication of their disputes, but to the tribunals of the Klan. The ballot box was a mere form, the Klan controlled the election machinery.

NO REMEDY TRIED

Behind the scenes was an orgy of corruption, vice, dissipation and graft. Time and again Federal agents "investigated" conditions throughout the State. The archives of the Department of Justice are filled with their reports.

It is perhaps indicative of Stephenson's growing power in national affairs that nothing ever was done by the Federal government to remedy matters.

Indeed, the story that I am going to tell in succeeding articles of this series is one that never has been told.

It is a story almost unbelievable in parts—yet every word of it is true. So true, in fact, that in several instances threats of publication sufficed to place some men—who could not be "reached"—in the penitentiary and others—more amenable to "reason"—in soft jobs at the capitol.

Every Indiana newspaper editor knows these things—or some of them. But none have dared to print more than the barest hint.

(Watch the Boston Evening American tomorrow for the second of this series.)

Tokio, Oct. 8.—The government radio experiment station at Hiraiso early today distinctly heard the radio telephone broadcast from the German station at Nauen.

MOBS TRAMPLE 50 WOMEN TO DEATH IN CHINA

Peking, Oct. 8 (AP)—The American Legation here has ordered military attaches, Captain S. V. Constant and Lieutenant David D. Barrett, to proceed to Sianfu to aid in the rescue of American missionaries marooned there because of the civil war.

Peking, Oct. 8.—(A.P.)—Dispatches from Hankow say that at least fifty women were among those trampled to death in the rush of the crowds through the gate of the city of Wuchang in an attempt to reach the boats taking refugees to Hankow, across the Yangtze river.

Chinese estimates, unconfirmed, say that 10,000 persons have died in Wuchang since the siege of that city by the red Cantonese army began some weeks ago. Most of these are said to have died of starvation.

Hankow dispatches states that 500 coffins have been shipped to Wuchang to bury refugees trampled or drowned in the rush for boats.

The Red Cross and other agencies of mercy as yet have been able to bring across the river only approximately 40,000 refugees.

For five weeks the ancient city across the river, which, under one name or another, has held a place in the commerce and politics of the Orient as far back as history is recorded, has been a sealed tomb of dead and dying. The streets are strewn with corpses and the populace is slowly starving to death.

The stubborn fury of its defense by the northern force was born of the refusal of the besiegers to grant any terms of surrender. In the war language of the East this probably means annihilation when hunger or shells have sufficiently sapped the strength of the gallant garrison.

VON SEEKT'S RESIGNATION ACCEPTED BY HINDENBURG

Berlin, Oct. 8 (I.N.S.)—President Von Hindenburg today accepted the resignation of General Von Seekt, commander, and ended a crisis growing out of the irregular service of the eldest son of the former Crown Prince Wilhelm in the Reichswehr, contrary to the terms of the Versailles Treaty governing Germany's land forces.

Republican, Democratic and Socialist newspapers declared that if the President allowed Von Seekt to remain head of the Reichswehr, Minister of Defence Gessler must resign, which would mean a victory for the militarist clique over the Parliamentary regime.

WELCOME TO Queen Marie of Rumania. She will not bring any short dresses. Thank heaven, she will set a good example to some of our foolish women who think there is something beautiful about offensively conspicuous knees—fat, thin, blunt or sharp. There isn't.

WELL, THE BAMBINO'S big bat did not do any wonderful work yesterday. In fact, it struck out at a critic point. But New York won and St. Louis is as sad as Carthage when the Romans had finished taking Cato's advice. (For the information of the vulgar, it may be mentioned that the "Bambino" is a baseball player called Babe Ruth.)

DR. IRVING FISHER, wise professor of Yale, tells you to remember that the dollar today is worth sixty-eight cents, as compared with its value before the war. So "you mustn't accept the dollar at its face value."

Many, however, are willing to accept it—if they can get it.

THE SAME THING was said privately months ago by Clarence Dillon, who deals in dollars as others deal in hats, shoes and wheat.

Money is the cheapest thing in the world today, and, therefore, as Weber and Fields used to say, "Go and get it."

CONGRATULATIONS to Mr. and Mrs. James A. Stillman, whose son will marry Miss Lena Wilson, an eighteen-year-old Scotch-Canadian girl who works for a living.

Some cocktail drinking parasites of our so-called "upper class" will think it a strange marriage. It is the sort of marriage that builds up coming generations, and that is the intention.

IN ONE MORE WAY, Mussolini shows he thinks along the lines of Napoleon Bonaparte. When Napoleon reached the summit of power he made an arrangement with the Vatican, reestablishing the Catholic Church in France with many ancient privileges taken from it by the Revolution.

He said: "I need a spiritual gendarmerie as well as a fighting army."

IL POPOLO D'ITALIA, Mussolini's newspaper organ, says a concordat should be arranged between the Italian government and the Vatican.

It probably will be arranged, and that, to the delight of millions of Catholics all over the world, may free the Popes from their self-imposed imprisonment within the Vatican walls, endured since Garibaldi and the unification of Italy ended the Pope's temporal power.

BRITISH MOVING picture men want their government to compel the British public to use 12½ per cent of British made films, whether they like them or not. American pictures monopolize the European market.

It was said of Barnum's white elephant that he would drink everything in the world, except English coffee. The reason was, that he didn't like it. Perhaps that is why the British won't go to see British moving pictures.

CANON NEWSON, Vicar of Newcastle-on-Tyne, says "science can be reconciled to religious belief and actually helps it."

The vicar says the old terrible thought that "the world might, after all, be nothing but a vast machine with no room for God or soul," has died out.

And now the scientific teaching of biology, which is the science of life, actually helps religion.

THAT'S EXCELLENT news. Whatever helps religion helps the world. As for science, it goes along and does very well, anyhow. It means simply investigating and reporting FACTS. And nothing on earth can interfere with fact—except a more powerful fact.

STEAL PAYROLL IN CITY HALL

A tin box filled with pay envelopes containing sums which may total $1,000 was stolen from the office of City Treasurer Warren H. Rideout in Quincy City Hall, it was learned today.

The police are searching for three young men who acted suspiciously shortly before the robbery and who are believed to have abstracted the box through a grill while the attention of two girl clerks was elsewhere.

FIGHT PLAN TO OPEN WAY FOR EX-KAISER'S RETURN

Berlin, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Liberal and radical party leaders of Prussia indicated today that they would fight the clause in the new Hohenzollern indemnity and settlement bill envisaging a possible return of the former Kaiser to Germany. The clause reads:

"Allowing for his former majesty's eventual wishes, the state places the castle of Homburg at the disposal of the ex-Kaiser and his princess wife, for life."

"That," says the Liberal Morgenpost "means nothing more or less than that William, if he is inclined, can return to Germany. The clause certainly sounds suspicious in view of William's recent subrosa monarchistic activities.

"The Crown Prince has violated the conditions of his return to Germany by attempting to get his son into the Reichswehr. What guarantee have we that the Kaiser, if allowed to return, will not attempt to overthrow the republic?"

Boston Music Lovers on Qui Vive for Symphony Orchestra Opening

MUSICALLY SPEAKING, the very heart and soul of Boston enters today and tomorrow in Symphony Hall, Boston's handsome Temple of Music in Huntington avenue, and home of Boston's own far famed Symphony Orchestra. For the first time this season the popular and dynamic conductor, Serge Koussevitsky, wields the baton over his gifted orchestra.

TO BE of the "Symphony" regulars gives a cachet essential to Bostonese, a cachet in the social world such as owning an "Athenaeum" share denotes in the circles of arts and literature. Boston personages, their children and their grandchildren all flock to Symphony for the occasion.

T. JEFFERSON COOLIDGE, president of the Museum of Fine Arts, and the trustees of that splendid institution have sent out cards for a private view of the Ballard collection of Oriental Rugs, at the Museum on Thursday afternoon, October 14.

SUCH A RARE and varied collection of rugs as this has never before been seen in Boston. Mr. Ballard, a collector and connoisseur, has covered the world's rug markets and traveled into far places to secure this or that treasure.

25 MILLION U. S. STINNES LOAN

Berlin, Oct. 8 (A.P.)—An American banking syndicate is to advance a loan of $25,000,000 to the family of Hugo Stinnes, Germany's great industrial magnate.

The loan will permit payment by the Stinnes firm of an amount said [illegible] owed to German banking interests and also form the nucleus of a working fund for two holding companies in the United States containing the entire interests of the Stinnes family.

This announcement is made by Hugo Stinnes, son of the industrialist, who said the money would be borrowed on the American market in two loans, carrying 7 per cent. interest.

BUILD 207,000 HOMES IN CITIES IN 6 MONTHS

Washington, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Dwelling houses for the accommodation of 207,231 families were erected during the first six months of 1926 in the 78 cities of the country with more than 100,000 population.

This estimate was made today by the Labor Department on the basis of building permits, and it was calculated the construction mean new housing for 65.6 families out of each 10,000 population within the cities surveyed, and the expenditures involved $23.43 per capita.

Los Angeles was found to be building new houses for 177.9 families for each 10,000 of its population, considerably above the average for the rest of the United States. The rate for New York [illegible] was 114.7

ARREST SHERIFF IN VERMONT

Montpelier, Vt., Oct. 9.—Following a special grand jury indictment, Wallace L. Fairbanks, sheriff of Windsor county, was under arrest here today charged with violation of the moral statutes.

Mystery surrounds the case, which is said to have resulted from complaints made to Governor Franklin S. Billings, who ordered an investigation.

The arrest was made by Sheriff H. J. Slayton, who was sent to Springfield, in the neighboring county of Windsor, armed with a capias.

The presentation of the evidence to the grand jury was attended with the greatest secrecy by State Attorney Charles B. Adams of Waterbury. After the indictment was returned no official would make a statement.

Only in unusual cases does the grand jury convene in this state, the penalties ranging from long state prison sentences to capital punishment.

FRANCE TO BAN ANTIQUE SALES

Paris, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—Reports of the recent sale of the historic Chateau de Courcelles to an unrevealed American millionaire for removal to his Long Island estate has redoubled protests in the French newspapers against what is described as the government's laxity in allowing France to be robbed gradually of her artistic treasures.

The reported sale has revived talk of legislation to prevent the sale abroad of rare French paintings and valuable antiques. This legislation will be discussed at the coming session of Parliament, and it is said there are excellent chances for it to be adopted.

The Chateau de Courcelles is situated at La Fleche, upon the road to Le Mans. It was built by Francois Mansart in 1640. Its chapel is of rare beauty and its dining room, whose woodwork represents the four seasons, is well known to art experts.

The chateau, long neglected, has no modern comforts and would probably require millions of francs to be made habitable.

BOY KILLED BY OWN PISTOL

James Wilson Baston, Jr., nineteen, was killed in his home, No. 9 Court street, Arlington, when a revolver he was moving while preparing for bed was accidentally discharged.

The bullet tore into the youth's chest killing him instantly, according to Associate Medical Examiner Currier who gave a verdict of accidental shooting.

STRIKERS AND POLICE FIGHT

New York, Oct. 8 (I.N.S.).—Striking window cleaners and police fought a pitched battle in the shadow of Borough Hall, Brooklyn, during the rush hour today in view of hundreds of persons. One man was stabbed and hurled through a plate glass window.

Four men, claiming to be strikers, were arrested only after police threatened them with revolvers.

U. J. Schwartz, president of the Home Window Cleaning Company was stabbed by one of twelve men who attacked him while he was guarding Edward Benson, an employe, who was cleaning store windows. Schwartz's injuries were not serious.

BRITISH BAR WOMEN AS RADIO ANNOUNCERS

London, Oct. 8 (A.P.)—The British Broadcasting Company does not favor women for radio announcers. This, despite the fact that women function in this capacity all over the continent.

The Broadcasting Company says its decision is not a reflection on women's intelligence, but is due rather to the severity of the task.

"We have found," says the company, "that women are temperamentally less suitable than men and the heavy physical strain imposed on the announcer is greater than could be borne by the average woman. Further, there is something incongruous in a woman announcing weighty news bulletins or long lists of football results."

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR PATRICK FALVEY HELD

Funeral services were held at the Church of the Immaculate Conception in Stoughton today for Patrick Falvey, 86 years old, for nearly half a century a resident of Stoughton. Of keen mind, he retained full possession of his faculties nearly to the end.

He left three daughters, Mrs. Bernard Marron, Misses Katherine and Anna M. Falvey and two sons, Daniel F. Falvey and John Falvey, the last named being well known in State and Wall streets. Mr. Falvey also leaves a grandson, Lloyd Marron, of the Boston Evening American's financial department.

BUCKNER FLAYS DAUGHERTY IN BRIBE CASE

New York, Oct. 8 (A.P.)—The validity of the $7,000,000 claims involved in the Daugherty-Miller trial has nothing at all to do with the case, United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner said today in his summarization of [illegible]

Much of the evidence in the trial of Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general, and Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, who are charged with conspiracy to defraud the United States, centered on the question of validity of the two claims Richard Merton, German metal magnate, presented in 1921 for the Societe Suisse Pour Valeurs De Metaux.

TRACED TO MILLER

The government adduced much testimony to show the claims were false, and that Merton paid John T. King, late Republican national committeeman from Connecticut, $441,000 to rush them through the offices of the attorney general and the alien property custodian. Testimony also was adduced to show that $50,000 of the fee was traced to Miller and some Harry M. Daugherty.

"The attorneys for Miller and for Daugherty have spent much time in their summations the last two days showing that these claims were valid. I want to tell you right now that the government doesn't care a straw whether these claims were true or false. It would be all the same to us too if the claims had been paid in 1911 instead of 1921.

EXPLAINS POINT OF CASE.

"The indictment does not charge the claims were invalid. That is a point outside the case and the only reason so much time was spent on it by the government was that we wanted to show you the claims were so full of holes that even the most incompetent of subordinates to these two men would never have passed them without consulting their bosses unless they had been told before that the bosses wanted those claims passed.

"It was simply an additional proof that the claims would not have been passed if Daugherty and Miller had not wanted them to pass."

BONES IN RUINS NOT THOSE OF HUMAN BEING

Lincoln, Vt., Oct. 8 (A.P.)—Bones found in the ruins of the large barn owned by Clarence Monroe which was destroyed by fire here Wednesday night were not those of a human being, it was revealed today by county officials.

A man by the name of Owen, a relative of Monroe, is said to have set the building on fire following a quarrel with the latter.

Forty tons of hay, a touring car and farm implements were destroyed at a loss of $6,000.

The Breakfast Room Which I Remember Best

"I HAVE traveled almost the world over. Have been the frequent guest in many beautiful homes in Europe and America. Have eaten countless breakfasts amid entrancing surroundings and prepared by exceptional cooks. But the occasions which I best remember are the breakfasts served in the sunny room here pictured.

"Breakfast to me is the ceremonial meal of the day. I want it in cheerful surroundings, with congenial company. I want inviting outlooks, flowers arranged by an artist, sunlight on the glassware. Then simple food served in the daintiest way.

"But, above all, a royal cup of coffee. I have studied coffee from tree to cup to become a connoisseur. Exquisite coffee is to me the glory of a breakfast. They serve it always in this room — La Touraine (Extra), brewed in the perfect way. They send a thousand miles to get it every week.

"I have often drunk coffee in the Ritz in Paris, whose coffee is famed the world over. I have drunk it in English coffee houses where good coffee had its birth. But I give to La Touraine (Extra) the pinnacle place as they serve it in this room. No ordinary coffee will ever satisfy one who has tasted that supreme creation."

—Extract from letter to the W. S. Quinby Company

Interesting facts about La Touraine (Extra) Coffee

It is the largest-selling coffee in New England, the birthplace of fine coffees in America. In this home of exacting coffee critics, it is considered the supreme result of 237 years of coffee development.

It is the coffee served in many dining places famous for their coffees. In all Statler Hotels, for instance. In the magnificent Shoreland of Chicago. In countless country homes which study fine hospitality.

The blend combines the four finest coffees that grow. Each comes from a different country, each is the pride of a nation. Each derives its excellent flavor from one of the rarest soils of the earth.

Three of the coffees combined in this blend cost 50% more than ordinary coffee, and 25% more than Sao Paulo, the prize coffee of Brazil. One is so rare that only 30,000 bags are grown yearly.

The formula for this blend is a secret, carefully preserved. Coffee experts spent 20 years in perfecting it. No other blend has been made to resemble it. Those who find here their ideal flavor can find it nowhere else.

Mr. E. J. Butler, the noted coffee expert, personally tests, tastes and selects all coffees used in this blend. His duty is to maintain without regard to cost, this premier coffee flavor. He pays any price necessary to combine in La Touraine (Extra) the maximum delights.

La Touraine (Extra) is sold direct to retail grocers. This to save middlemen's profits. It is sold in double sealed cartons, not in cans. These and other economies about 11 cents per pound pay for the extra quality. Thus users get this matchless coffee without a fancy price.

DAMAGED CRAFT SAFE IN PORT

Vineyard Haven, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—The British schooner Nova Queen, which was run down early Wednesday morning off Nantucket Shoals by an unidentified steamer, was in port here today, towed in by the coast guard cutter C[illegible].

The bowsprit was carried away to the knightheads in the collision, together with the headgear. The cargo of laths was intact and the vessel did not spring a leak.

The schooner, bound from Port Greville and Parrsboro, N. S., for New York, was proceeding southward, off the shoals, when one steamer tried to pass another in the narrow channel. The collision with the schooner resulted and the steamer sped on without making known its identity.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

Hygiene Is Vital to School Children

By DR. JOHN A. CECONI

(Director Department of School Hygiene for City of Boston)

The rank and file of citizens have little conception of the scale and importance of the work done by the Department of School Hygiene. It is vital not only to the children in equipping them for life duties, but also to the parents and to the community from an economical as well as a health standpoint.

Dr. Ceconi

The child committed to our care has the right to look to us not only for the correction of defects, but for conservation of health to the end that his vital capacity may be so maintained as to enable him to take from the schools all that the schools have to give, and that the teaching staff functions to the point of maximum efficiency.

The public and private health agencies in Boston, in so far as is humanly possible, have decreed that no child shall be born that is not well born and no child so born shall reach the public schools susceptible to those ills to which children are peculiarly heirs, without active immunization have been properly provided for and attained. That no child shall appear for matriculation in school without every effort having been made to obtain for him the maximum state of good health, good nutrition and mental receptivity.

Statistics may serve to give an idea of the size and character of the work. The department of medical inspection in ten years—1915-1924—shows the following record:

Physical examinations made of school children, 1,100,000.
Children with defects, 690,000.
Defective nasal breathing, 150,000.
Defective aural breathing, 150,000.
Hypertrophied tonsils, 344,000.
Defective teeth 440,000.
Defective palates, 1,000.
Cervical glands, 35,000.
Pulmonary diseases, tuberculous and non-tuberculous, 6,000.
Nervous diseases, organic and functional, 8,000.
Chorea, 840.
Orthopedic defects, tuberculous and non-tuberculous, 18,000.
Skin affections, 1,000.
Malnutrition, 35,000.
Total with defects, 811,887.

In addition to the above there were more than 1,500,000 inspections made by school physicians in the school population of Boston. Corrective work relates to elementary and intermediate districts because it is in these grades that the nursing personnel is provided.

Refer Defects

The school physicians, principals and teachers of high schools functioned by referring to the parents physical defects found in their pupil groups, with the result that family physicians were notified of defects and proper and timely treatment administered.

As to the work of school nurses in elementary and intermediate districts, the following figures tell the story:

Emergency treatments in school, 300,000.
Consultations with principals, teachers and pupils, 4,500,000.
Class room talks, 135,000.
Home visits, 350,000.
Visits to institutions for clinical treatment of pupils, 173,000.
Dental work 341,000.
Total activities in nursing field, 5,722,789.

There were nearly 187,000 physical examinations made of children applying for certificates of employment and approximately 129,000 of this number were granted certificates.

A Huge Total

This made a grand total of 3,488,832 activities performed by school physicians and school nurses in the Department of School Hygiene in the ten years ending in 1924.

This magnificent achievement was accomplished by my predecessor, Dr. William H. Devine, and a corps of fifty school physicians and school nurses. I did not take charge of the Department of School Hygiene until May 11, 1925.

Too much praise cannot be bestowed on Health Commissioner Francis X. Mahoney for his breadth and vision in divorcing the Department of School Hygiene from the Health Department and in placing it under the Department of Education.

GUARDS STAY IN BRITISH MINES

London, Oct. 8 (A.P.).—The miners' delegate conference today decided to refer the South Wales resolution, calling the safety workers out of the mines, to the various districts for ratification.

Withdrawal of the "safeties" in support of the striking miners would entail the flooding of many of the pits and other serious damage, as these men operate the pumps and otherwise care for the pits during the miners' absence.

There was something of a sensation at the conference today when George A. Spencer, Laborite M. P. and Nottinghamshire miners' leader, who negotiated the pit settlements and arranged for the men to return to work in that area, was summoned to explain his position.

He gave a lengthy explanation, but was suspended. Several other Nottingham delegates were expelled in connection with the action in Spencer's case.

The Secret Studio

A Modern Romance With a Charming Heroine

By Hazel Livingston

Rosemary Merton, youngest daughter in a large Roxbury family, rebels at her poor surroundings and dreams of romance and luxury. She is attending college, but leaves and gets a job in a fashionable bookstore through a friend, Nina Clark. Nina takes Rosemary up the back stairs in the building to a studio occupied by a group of artists. They call it the Secret Studio. They hold a party and Rosemary attends with Larry Kane, one of the artists. Sunday, the next day, Rosemary and Larry go to the studio alone, where they are surprised by Sloan Whitney. She later meets Whitney and is attracted to him.

CHAPTER XXIII.

"I THINK I'll go home early, Ed!" Nina called. "Good night!"

"All right!" His voice was surly, but Nina only grinned and blew a kiss at the back of his head as she went to get her hat and coat.

Nina wasn't afraid of anybody. But then she didn't have to worry about her job. . . .

"Oh, Miss Merton!"

Rosemary jumped. What did Graham want now?

"Package for you." He handed her a long pasteboard box like a shoebox tied with green string.

Rosemary touched the string. Lifted the cover ever so little. Flowers! Her heart began to beat wildly. She set it down. No, she couldn't wait till she got home. She'd have to open it now. Pandora-like she opened the lid, threw back the moist glistening paper.

Orchids. Deep purple, gorgeous, steeped in tropic perfume!

[illegible]

As the first jungle scent swept over her, for an instant she felt him beside her, this Sloan Whitney, the man whom she hardly knew. It was as if he were there at her elbow, arrogant, charming.

Exotic flowers. Cruel flowers.

TURNPIKE TO BE THROUGH WAY

The much-discussed "Boulevard Stop" system will go into effect on the Newburyport Turnpike Sunday, Commissioner William F. Williams of the State Department of Public Works announced today.

The Turnpike will be designated as a "Through Way," the only one in the State, and the experiment will be watched closely.

Automobiles entering or crossing the Turnpike from intersecting streets will be forced to come to a full stop unless traffic is being directed at the intersection by an officer. Signs will be erected tomorrow on the intersections reading "Through Way—Stop Before Entering." The cooperation of police, State Department of Public Safety and Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin has been requested.

Many homesite developments now being laid out. Buy a lot and hold for future profits. See the Classified Ads for special offerings. Classification 79.

ACCUSED OF FRAUD BY MOTHER

While one of her sons, "Eddie" Ainsmith, former Washington Senators catcher, sends her money, her other son, Frederick, living at home, is attempting to defraud her of all her possessions, Mrs. Hannah K. Ainsmith of Florence street, Cambridge, charged today.

Mrs. Ainsmith, seventy-five years old, growing feeble and a bit hazy in the intricacies of legal matters, has brought suit in Middlesex Superior Court in an attempt to retain her interest in her house, from which she alleges Frederick threatens to evict her.

It is the mother's assertion that Frederick is trying tricked her into the deed of the house and leaving her [illegible] owner, now threatens [illegible] she continues [illegible]

The son, Frederick, piano worker by trade, but incapacitated, he asserts, through being gassed overseas, is a "D" veteran. According to his version of the story, the court action is a "just" step in a family squabble.

The Satisfaction of Having Radio

The other day we met a man who said that he had yet to be sold on radio. He is simply unfortunate if he cannot realize that radio is one of the greatest benefits that has yet been made for man. For the poorest man, as well as the richest, information flies through the air almost continually, broadcasting the news, weather forecasts and sports results.

Just a short while ago the results of the Dempsey-Tunney fight were sent from the ring as they actually occurred, the fans hearing the bell, the voice of the ring announcer, and the roar of the mob.

Just now we are in the midst of the World's Series baseball games. To the fan who cannot leave his duties to travel to the games, the next best thing is to "listen in." Every detail of the game is heard over the air, even a trifle sooner than when sent over the wire to the newspaper office.

When the World's Series is over, the big football games will be starting and then the thrills will be intense. Harvard-Yale, Boston College-Holy Cross, Dartmouth-Harvard, Army-Navy, and other games will let every listener hear the game as it is played at the exact moment it occurs. This Winter the hockey and basketball games will be broadcasted. But enough has been said to show sports fans how necessary a radio set is to them.

To another group of people radio is indispensable. We mean the music lovers to whom the Symphony concerts, about to start, the U. S. Marine Band, Aleppo Drum Corps and the operas from WEAF, and the dance programs are very interesting. Add to these the great national weekly programs of the Eskimos, Gypsies, Ginger-Gems, Troubadours, and it is seen that not to have a radio set is to miss much of the enjoyment of living.

In order to have good result you must own your own set. And the sooner it is purchased, the more satisfaction you will get, as nearly everyone is going to have a set, so why wait? Buy your RADIO today.

To All Who Suffer Stomach Agony, Gas and Indigestion

Boston Druggists Make This Offer

Money Back If One Bottle of Dare's Mentha Pepsin Doesn't Do You More Good Than Anything You Ever Used

At last the way has been found to combine Pepsin with other corrective stomach agents so that it will do the most good in the shortest possible time.

Why bother with slow actors when one tablespoonful of this splendid and pleasant liquid remedy will cause gas, bloating, heaviness, heartburn or any upset condition of the stomach to speedily vanish.

And why should any man or woman suffer another hour with indigestion or any stomach misery when one remedy that acts almost instantly can be easily procured?

But there is more to say about this remarkable remedy—something that will interest thousands of despondent people.

Dare's Mentha Pepsin not only quickly relieves stomach distress, but it also conquers stubborn indigestion, dyspepsia and gastritis, and puts an end to dizziness, nervousness, headache, sleeplessness and despondency which distressing troubles are nearly always caused by chronic stomach disturbance.

Dare's Mentha Pepsin is pleasant to take, has a delightfully refreshing taste and after it has put your stomach in a clean and healthy condition, just notice how much better you look and feel, for besides correcting stomach disorders this supremely good remedy that druggists everywhere guarantee, is a fine tonic that builds you up and makes you work with vim, eat with relish and sleep soundly.

Doris Kenyon Better, to Wed Next Week

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8—Doris Kenyon has been gravely ill with an attack of influenza. Her doctors promise her that she will be well enough to marry Milton Sills next Thursday, and Doris, who fought against the postponement of her plans, is hoping they are right.

Mrs. Kenyon, who is at the Kenyon camp in the Adirondacks, said over the long distance telephone that her daughter is greatly improved and out of danger.

The reticence on the part of Sills and his fiancee to talk when they arrived in New York ten days ago gave rise to all sorts of rumors. The most prevalent one is that Mrs. Sills had not signed the final divorce papers as agreed upon before Mr. Sills left California.

Doris Kenyon

This was denied by Mrs. Kenyon, who stated emphatically that the only reason for the delay in her daughter's matrimonial plans was her serious illness.

After a short honeymoon, Sills will take his bride to California where he has bought a new home for her. They will both begin work at the First National studios in Burbank. Sills will appear in "The Runaway Enchantress," based on a story by Mary Heaton Vorse. Miss Kenyon's next story has not been selected.

RICHARD BARTHELMESS is on his way East. No, he is not being accompanied by Mary Hay, but she did go to the train with him in Los Angeles and kiss him an affectionate farewell.

While Mary Hay stays in Santa Monica looking after the baby, Richard will take a trip to Europe on a vacation. He has exactly six weeks for that vacation, for his next move will be "The Patent Leather Kid" at First National's West Coast studios.

JACK MULHALL IS TRAVELING to the West Coast today. With him is a pretty, slender young woman who answers to the name of Mrs. Jack Mulhall. She happens to be the woman who was seen with Jack Mulhall while he was at a night-club with Buster Collier, Constance and other guests.

"I know it would be much more interesting," she said, "to have a strange woman with my husband, but I am sorry to disappoint the world."

I almost forgot the principal part of this story. Colleen Moore, who was in New York making exteriors on "Orchids and Ermine," also left for California to finish her picture at the Burbank studios. Her husband, John McCormick, has already gone West.

IF THESE FILM STARS DID NOT HAVE to work for a living life would not be so hard. Here is Patsy Ruth Miller, who has been having the time of her young life in New York, being summoned back to Los Angeles by Warner Brothers.

Pat is leaving Monday with her father, mother and young brother to play in "Wolf's Clothing," an Arthur Somers Roche picture.

She will stop a few days in the home town, St. Louis, just to let her friends see how a movie star looks in person. Did Pat vote for the Cardinals or the Yanks? Three guesses.

UNITED FRUIT LINER MODELLED IN SUGAR

A candied model of one of the United Fruit Company's liners has just been completed by Camille Den Dooven, former chef to King Albert of Belgium, and which will be placed on exhibition at a convention of the company in Swampscott next week.

There were 450 different pieces used in the construction, and the completed product represents 11 pounds of sugar, one and one-half pounds of starch, the whites of 44 eggs, and four ounces of gelatine.

The ship is about three feet in length, and is resting majestically in a sea of sugar worked up to perfection by the master hand of the artist chef.

Shoots Bear

Attorney Arthur V. Jones of Powder House blvd., West Somerville, has shot a two-year-old bear, weighing 130 pounds, in the Black Mountain woods, near his Summer home at Jackson, N. H.

VICTOREEN SET SCORES WITH SERIES RETURNS

A Victoreen superheterodyne, constructed according to instructions printed in last Monday's radio section of the Boston Evening American, is giving very satisfactory service under the supervision of [illegible] Pingree, of Pingree Radio Service, factory representatives of Victoreen sets.

Many of the baseball fans became radio fans and showed particular interest in the Victoreen set. It might be mentioned at this time that the Victoreen made an excellent showing during the last trans-Atlantic radio tests.

"HOT oats and milk" is the dietetic urge of the day.

It's the "balanced ration" of protein, carbohydrates and vitamines—plus the "bulk" to make laxatives less often needed—that world's authorities are advising.

Now you cook it in 3 to 5 minutes. That's faster than plain toast. No kitchen muss or bother.

Why go on, then, with less nourishing breakfasts? Today get Quick Quaker . . . food that stands by you through the morning.

Your grocer has Quick Quaker—also Quaker Oats as you have always known them.

INVESTMENT TRUSTS NEW FACTOR

That changing financial conditions and complex post-war investment [illegible] are encouraging the development of the United States of [illegible] types of investment [illegible] was the keynote of the conference on foreign investments conducted by New York University, in cooperation with the Investment Bankers Association and held in the governing committee room of the New York Stock Exchange.

In introducing the speaker, Mr. [illegible] Rex Robinson, trustee and vice president of International Securities Trust of America, Professor George Edwards, of the Wall Street [illegible] of New York University, emphasized the large volume of foreign finance in this country since the war and called attention to the variety of resulting problems.

"It is too early," Mr. Robinson said, "to predict whether American investment trusts will grow to the enormous importance which similar institutions command in Great Britain."

Investment trusts and comparable companies in London, according to the speaker, have active capital far exceeding $1,000,000,000—and have been of incalculable importance in maintaining London's position in the world money market. If the movement in this country is guided with equal skill, it is likely that investment trusts will greatly strengthen American finance, and facilitate American exports.

The speaker described two contrasted investment policies pursued by American investment trusts. Some trusts buy only common stocks and confine their purchases to American securities. Others purchase bonds, as well as shares, and buy internationally wherever market conditions prove most favorable. The latter investment trusts, according to Mr. Robinson, will have a more far-reaching effect upon American foreign relations and commerce.

COTTON TEXTILE SALES AHEAD OF PRODUCTION

Sales of standard cotton textiles for the [illegible] ending September 30 exceeded production by 38 per cent., according to data just compiled by the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York. [illegible] for the three months' period between July 1 and September 30 was 612,712,00 yards, compared with aggregate sales of 848,642,000 yards. These figures represent about [illegible] per cent of all standard cotton cloths manufactured in the United States.

Stocks on hand have been decreasing steadily under a persistent buying demand. Stocks [illegible] decreased from 305,425,000 yards on July 1 to 214,305,00 yards on September 30, or 26½ per cent. Compared with September 15, when stocks aggregated 234,810,00 yards, stocks decreased in the two weeks ending September 30 by 10,502,00 yards, or 4.4 per cent.

Unfilled orders on September 30 totaled 338,650,000 yards, compared with a total of 187,837,000 yards on July 1, an increase of 150,813,000 yards, or 80 per cent, compared with July 1.

MOODY EXPLAINS BURDEN LAID ON MONEY MARKET

Moody's weekly review of financial conditions points out that just at this season the Atlantic States are making their maximum payments for agricultural products bought from the interior, and this turns what might be called "our internal balance of trade against New York for the time being. Our money market feels this burden, which perhaps accounts in part for some of the irregularity in stocks."

CENSUS BUREAU GIVES COTTON CROP FIGURES

Washington, Oct. 8 (A.P.)—Cotton of this year's crop ginned prior to [illegible] counting [illegible] as half bales and [illegible] compared with [illegible] year, the [illegible] announced today.

GREEN SEES TROUBLE AS POSSIBLE IN SOUTH

Charlotte, N. C., Oct. 8 (A.P.)—Economic disaster will prevail in the South unless conditions are altered materially before the end of the cotton harvest in the opinion of W. Singleton Green, [illegible] of the Southern Yarn Spinners' Association. He believes that the movement to withhold cotton from the market is "neither feasible nor possible."

Grains Are Firm

Chicago, Oct. 8 (I.N.S.)—Grains were steady to firm today. Wheat was ¼ to ⅝c higher, corn unchanged to ¼c higher, and oats unchanged to ⅛c higher.

American Tobacco Company is one of the largest manufacturers in the world of cigarettes and tobacco. It [illegible] of smoking tobacco and cigarettes. The company has plants throughout the country.

Sales have more than doubled since 1914 and during the ten-year period ending in 1925 net profits available for dividends averaged over 17 million dollars annually or to 7.16 per cent. on the common stock outstanding after allowing for preferred dividend requirements.

Paying 41 Billions

Business men are naturally interested in the problem of paying off the national debt. President Coolidge of our own New England, and his able Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Mellon, have come in for widespread praise regarding what has been accomplished to date.

The debt has been cut about six billion dollars under the Coolidge administration to date. If the 1920 tax rates had not been cut the taxpayer would have borne an additional burden of about fourteen billion dollars more to date.

If we pay off the remainder of the debt in the next quarter century, it will cost with interest and principal about forty-one billion dollars. If we delay sixty-two years it will cost seventy-one billion dollars.

National economy can mean little, if the towns and cities and States do not follow the example, we have heard it ably pointed out by Wellington Wells, president of the Massachusetts State Senate.

Note the splendid example set by Massachusetts. The cost of government has decreased in the Bay State, while advancing in other States. Here are the comparative figures as given by the Census Bureau:

	Massachusetts		48 States
	1925	1924	1925	1924
Per capita cost of government	$9.30	$10.28	$9.10	$2.86
Per capita revenue receipts	10.22	12.21	13.19	12.32
Per capita property and special taxes	6.06	6.65	5.28	5.20

BREACH IS AVERTED BY ELI ACTION

Princeton and Harvard Both Glad Tradition Will Not Be Broken

WORD that the threatened rupture of relations between Harvard and Princeton has been averted comes as welcome news to graduates and undergraduates of all of the tripartite institutions.

Professor Charles W. Kennedy, who represented Princeton at the conference just completed in New Haven, was received when he returned to Princeton by an uproarious demonstration of joy.

Similarly was the news received in New Haven, where the Yale undergraduates felt that Prof. George H. Nettleton had handled the situation with extreme diplomacy. Yale's part in the matter is deserving of the highest praise, as it was through her efforts that an agreement was reached between Kennedy and William J. Bingham, Harvard's athletic director, it is said.

The conference between Bingham, Nettleton and Kennedy resulted in the resumption of the Big Three program and the promise by Harvard to give up all idea of substituting Michigan for Princeton on her football scvhedule. The Tigers will be played this year and next, and the Big Three tradition will not be broken.

ISSUE STATEMENT.

As the result of their conference, the following statement was signed bv the representatives of the three colleges and sent to the press:

"The first regular meeting for the present academic year of the Harvard-Yale Princeton chairmen of athletics was held at New Haven Wednesday evening, Oct. 6.

"After full conference it was mutually agreed that the tentative proposal of a Harvard-Michigan football game at Ann Arbor in 1927 was counter to the understanding and practice of th triple alliance", and on the suggestion of Harvard it was accordingly withdrawn.

"The Harvard-Princeton football game for 1927 will be played in Princeton, and no change in the essential athletic relations of the three universities is contemplated."

This statement was signed by the three athletic boards who took part in the conference.

Mr. Bingham, Harvard's representative, returned to Cambridge and

PRINCE INJURED, SALEM SHOW IS POSTPONED

Louis Prince of Nashua, N. H., notified Jimmy Mede of the Salem A. A. that he would be unable to go through with his 10-round bout with Johnny Moore tonight, due to an injury received while in training. Prince asked for a postponement of a week. Rather than offer a substitute to the fans, the promoter decided to stage the same card of boxing on Oct. 15.

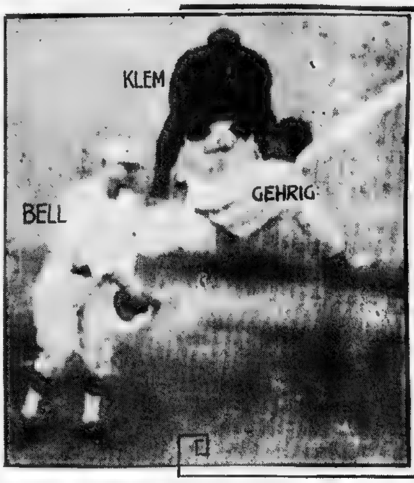
SCENES FROM ST. LOUIS, WHERE THERE'S ANOTHER 'BATTLE OF THE CENTURY'



COLUMBIA LOU IS SAFE

Lou Gehrig, former Columbia athlete and present first sacker for the Yankees, is safe at third in the second inning of the fifth game against St. Louis, which the Yanks annexed 3 to 2.

TIMEPIECES FOR CARDS

Mayor Miller of St. Louis presenting watches to the members of the St. Louis Cardinals before the start of the fourth game of the World's Series, won by the Yanks 10-5. The Cards then dropped the fifth game and are now behind, three to two.

GOTHAM WOMAN WILL ATTEMPT LONG SWIM

New York, Oct. 8 (I N S.)—An attempt to swim the 160 miles in the Hudson River from Albany to New York will be made Sunday morning by Lotty Moore Schoemmell, New York's only woman life guard.

Mrs. Schoemmell expects to make the distance in four days, swimming during the day and sleeping aboard a launch at night. She will attempt to swim 70 miles the first day, starting under the Albany bridge about 6.30 o'clock Sunday morning

The time of Mille Gade Corson, woman channel swimmer, for the same swim was six days.

Mrs. Schoemmell recently swam 44½ miles around Manhattan Island in 14 hours 11 minutes. She set a record of 5 hours 57 minutes for the 21 mile swim from the Battery to Sandy Hook.

O'Farrell Leads Hitters

New York, Oct. 8 (I.N.S.)—Bob O'Farrell, the Cardinals' slugging catcher, today had assumed the batting leadership of the world series regulars with the fine average of .437. Lou Gehrig, Yankee first baseman, was second with a mark of .412.

The Yanks are batting .245, only fourteen points behind St. Louis.

Treat Picks Holy Cross to Beat Harvard for Second Year, 14 to 6

By HERT TREAT

Harvard alone of the "Big Three" elevens will go down in defeat tomorrow afternoon. According to the advance dope, Holy Cross should win its second victory in two years over the Crimson in the Stadium by a margin of eight points.

Yale and Princeton figure to win by comfortable margins.

Some of the teams picked to lose tomorrow may prove a lot stronger than they appear on paper as did Geneva in its game agaist Harvard last Saturday and upset the dope. Otherwise the scores should [illegible] favorably with our predictions.

Harvard-Holy Cross (1925, Holy Cross 7, Harvard 6)

Last Saturday we underestimated the strength of Geneva's team and picked Harvard to win and likewise overestimated the strength of St. Johns' which was severely whipped by Holy Cross. Today I think that by the comparative scores of last week Harvard is underrated and Holy Cross perhaps a bit over-rated. After watching Harvard I feel that she has protential strength and as the season goes along the Crimson should come rapidly. Inaugurating a new system such as Horween's is an extremely severe task. This, coupled with fact that injuries and eligibility requirements, keeping such men out of the game as Captain Coady, Daly, Crosby and Turner, is enough to make the outlook most disheartening for the Harvard supporters.

French and Sayles are two good backs and impressed me decidedly last week. Al Miller is reported to be burning up the practice sessions by running wild but never having seen Al crash through in a big game, we can't hold too much faith in him for tomorrow.

Holy Cross will present a back field more experienced and much faster. The system is well worked out and the general condition of the men superior. Mentally Holy Cross has the edge which is a big asset. The two opposing lines are about evenly matched but the edge seems to favor Holy Cross, in that Harvard's tackles look to be woefully weak. Not once did I see either tackle charge across the line of scrimmage to break up the interference of Geneva, and by playing a waiting game, Cleo O'Donnell's fleet backs should run by them for substantial gains following a well coached and hardhitting interference.

Harvard's lone chance to win would be to rise to the occasion and play and fight as it never has before but this being probelmatical, Holy Cross is favored and looks to me to be the winner.

Holy Cross 14—Harvard 6.

Yale-Georgia (1925, Yale 35, Georgia 7)

Tad Jones has his usual big Yale team rolling at top speed. The Eli will meet with resistance tomorrow from the Georgia team which comes from the South with a reputation of being the best in years. This game will be good preparation for the Eli as next Saturday they take on Dartmouth to play off the 14 to 14 tie of 1924.

Georgia, nor any other small college of its type, can hope to have enought to offer to keep Yale from scoring at least three touchdowns. Georgia will fight to keep Yale's score small but with such tremendous backfield power and secondary strength such as exists at New Haven we fail to see how the Southerners can hold Yale to less than 21 points.

Yale 21—Georgia 0.

Princeton-Washington & Lee (1925, Princeton 15, W. & L. 6)

I haven't been able to satisfy myself whether Amherst was extremely strong or Princeton's line weaker than judged. At any rate Princeton's starts are usually unimpressive and so, too, in tomorrows game the Tigers will probably find the going rather hard.

Much has been expected of the Roper eleven this year and so it might

COLLEGIATES PRIMED FOR TOMORROW

New York, Oct. 8 (A P.)—Football clans throughout the East were priming for the last time today the big guns they will wheel onto college gridirons tomorrow as early season games give way to more important conflicts.

A hungry set of Yale bulldogs are waiting at New Haven for the bulldogs of the South, the University of Georgia, for a [illegible] that [illegible] to furnish thrills [illegible] world series struggle in New York.

The Southerners, heading East for the mythical Dixie championship, split last year by the green wave of Tulane and the Auburn Crimson tide, have overwhelming victories to their credit over Mercer and Virginia to spur them on.

A fleet, light [illegible] behind a fast charging line, a team of veterans will give the Eli forward wall a busy afternoon [illegible] University failed to provide [illegible] Saturday.

In Luckey, Georgia has a tackle who is knocking at the door of All-American fame. With the [illegible] mates he is bound to [illegible] how Yale may hope to fare against the smashing charge of the Dartmouth forwards October 16—whether old Eli has a defense worthy of her smashing attack.

Princeton, after a [illegible] over Amherst last week, is [illegible] for better things against Washington & Lee. The 18 to 0 whipping [illegible] by the Generals at the [illegible] of W. Va. last week stamps [illegible] as the easiest facing the [illegible] tomorrow.

Savage scrimmage [illegible] the work of the Dartmouth [illegible] in preparation for the [illegible] invasion. Jess Hawley, [illegible] he has another power[illegible] combination to equal the [illegible] ran wild through all opp[illegible] year, is grinding away [illegible] wards to develop faster [illegible] and better interference [illegible] backs have broken through.

Defensive work featured the [illegible] drills of the Service elevens. The army cadets, remembering the [illegible] torious struggle put up by [illegible] Elkins last year, have shifted the lineup to present the [illegible] front. Slight injuries probably will keep several of the navy regulars from the Drake contest.

Percy Wendell's Lehigh eleven staggering under two successive defeats, has worked unceasingly for the battle with the speedy Brown team at Providence.

CHAPMAN OFF FOR WEST TO FIGHT EDDIE MACK

Red Chapman of Chelsea, with his manager, Charlie Cardio, will leave Boston today for Chicago, where he is slated to box Eddie Mack on October 15

This will be the first match for the Chelsea lad since he lost to Honeyboy Dick Finnegan.

him without trouble. But the Cards, as we have intimated, seem to have ceased thinking.

THE impression of terrific power was sold to the St. Louis out[illegible] Babe Ruth and the rest of [illegible] [illegible] as a result the wreckage of defeat came clattering around their ears.

Wee Willie Sherdel went out and pitched mighty good ball game. He showed the heart of a lion by knocking the mighty Ruth twice in the pinch. But he couldn't carry the whole burden. The first New York run was a gift, and the second had nothing very sturdy in the way of opposition put forth against it. And when two runs are handed to the enemy in a tight ball game, the losing pitcher is not much to blame.

Nobody can give Herbie Pennock that kind of a handicap and expect to get away with it. The slight [illegible] [illegible] other register [illegible] Bob [illegible] tried to make a shoe-string catch of a line drive. What should have been a single became a double and was turned into a run.

O'FARRELL SURE CARDS WILL YET WIN

By BOB O'FARRELL
Catcher for the Cardinals
Written Expressly for Universal Service

St. Louis, Oct. 8.—The Yanks got about all the breaks that can happen—and that's why they whipped us in a 10-inning victory.

I've played the game for a long, long time, but I don't remember anyw[illegible] a ball club on one day go so many of the lucky bits. I lost count of the exact number, but I know that just about every one of their Texas league pops helped them to beat us.

I'll give the Yanks credit for making a courageous fight. They had to come from behind twice to tie us and then break the tie to win. But they never would have turned the trick if they hadn't been the special favorite of old lady luck. For it was the lucky hits—Pennock—and later Paschal's that beat us.

It was a tough game for Bill Sherdel to lose—mighty, mighty tough. Bill pitched the kind of baseball that would have won nine out of ten ball games. His misfortune is that this was the tenth.

The Series' count doesn't make things look so rosy for us just now. It's 3 to 2 against us—and only two games left to play. But I think we can turn the trick. The pitching odds are all in our favor. We have Alexander and Haines to call upon—two men who beat the Yankees in earlier games.

Golf Notes

A. S. BROWN, Jr. is staging an 18 hole exhibition match at his North Shore Golf and Tennis Club on Sunday afternoon. Jack Campbell, pro at the Salem Country Club and Alex Ellis, from United States will play Dave Sutherland of Fall River and Harry Ellis of the Vesper Country Club.

HARRY KENWORTHY, the former Rhode Island champion and Teddy Hancock the present title holder, will meet in the semi finals for the Metacomet Country Club championship on Sunday. Kenworthy has not been playing much golf of late as his back has been giving him considerable trouble but Teddy will have to be right on his game to reach the finals.

MRS. O. S. HILL of Kansas City, Mo., who gave such a fine account of herself in the Women's championships at Merion against Glenna Collett and Mathew J. Campbell of the entertaining club won the low gross in the mixed foursome tournament at Belmont Spring. Mr. and Mrs. John H. Woodfin, Brae Burn, carried home the low net trophies.

JIM DALEY, of the Belmont Spring Country Club will never come any closer to a hole in one than yesterday on the 12th. Using a No. 3 iron, Daley smashed into a fine shot which he played to the right with a slight hook. The ball landed on the green and then ran right at the cup. Had the flag been out of the hole, Daley would have had his "ace" but the pellet hit the pin and turned off, stopping about a foot to the right of the cup.

DUE to the fact that the W. G. A. of Boston members were the guests of Mrs. Halnan at Oakley yesterday, the field at the Belmont Spring Country Club mixed foursomes was small. Some of those who played at Oakley doubled up by playing Belmont but most of them felt that 18 holes was enough for one day.

GRANGE MAGNET FOR GRIDIRON FOLLOWERS

"Red" Grange, the Illinois [illegible] [illegible] name [illegible] A[illegible] Pacific [illegible] Boston for the first [illegible] league football game of the season tomorrow at Braves Field, is [illegible] one of the greatest magnets [illegible] sportdom.

Everybody in Boston is anxious to get a closeup of Grange. Wherever he goes, he is followed by a throng. The red headed athlete is just as popular as ever and when he leads his Yankees on the field at Braves Field tomorrow at 2:30 o'clock to clash with Herb Treat's Boston Bull-dogs, it is expected that the greatest crowd that ever witnessed a non college gridiron game here, will be on hand.

Fans from all sections of New England have demanded seats close to the chalkmarks for tomorrow's game and it is predicted that a crowd of 25,000 will turn out for the game.

Grange has announced his starting backfield for the game, Grange, and Tryon will have Pooley Hubert former Alabama star behind the line with him, while George Pease, former Columbia star will be at quarter.

DALEY OUT OF LINEUP FOR YEAR

Harvard's Veteran Guard in Hospital—Crimson Badly Crippled

Leo Daley, veteran guard of the Harvard football eleven, probably will not be able to play football again this season. This announcement was made following a conference of physicians at the Brooks Memorial Hospital, Brookline, where Daley was taken yesterday for observation for appendicitis as announced yesterday in the Boston Evening American.

The consultants, Drs. J. T. Hubbard, R. B. Cochrane and T. K. Richards, in an informal statement on his condition, said that Daley's condition is serious and that he probably will not be available for the football eleven this season.

While Daley is at the hospital, two other Crimson regulars are confined to their beds. Captain Clem Coady has not attended classes for the last two days and has not left his room. His leg injury has mended slowly and he will be forced to witness the Holy Cross game from the sidelines.

The Crimson's best booter, Arthur French of Winchester, spent all day yesterday at the Stillman Infirmary reclining on a Harvard cot. French has a boil on his leg.

Following the ineligibility of Turner and Crosby a train of injuries has dimmed the chances of Harvard's defeating Holy Cross. Harvard with a new forward flank, composed of green varsity material and a revamped backfield, will enter the Holy Cross game severely handicapped.

In case French plays the Crimson will line up with Saltonstall and Meadows, ends; Simonds and Clark, tackles; Goodwin and Stewart, guards; Parkinson, centre, with Stafford, Sayles, Miller and French in the backfield.

The line-up has in the forward line seven players who were not starters against Geneva a week ago. The last of the Geneva starters, Jack Robinson, relinquished his end berth to Bill Saltonstall in the varsity line-up given out today.

Ernie Gamache, regular end, will see action in the game with the Crusaders as a pivot, replacing Parkinson. The loss of Turner has weakened the centre squad considerably and Gamache will return to his old berth at centre.

shortly after his arrival, issued a statement.

Director Bingham's statement read:

"The athletic relations between Princeton and Harvard are excellent and I am confident that nothing will arise to disturb the amicability of this relationship.

"There never has been any suggestion on the part of Harvard of discontinuing athletic contests with Princeton.

"Some months ago, with the approval of our committee on the regulation of athletic sports, I inquired of the chairman of the Princeton Board of Control as to Princeton's probable attitude towards a suspension of the football games for the next two years to enable us to play a home and home game with the University of Michigan.

"This request was made because our faculty regulation, made last year, prevents more than one football game to be played away from Cambridge each year."

Mr. Bingham explained the last paragraph of the report meant no change in the rules of eligibility, etc., but that the question of future games was left open."

This of course will be taken to mean that while Harvard has agreed to play Princeton in 1927 there is no agreement to play in 1928 or thereafter. This was made very clear.

Milligan Stops Ted Moore in 14th

London, Oct. 8—Tommy Milligan retained the European middleweight championship, defeating Ted Moore in the 14th round of a 20-round fight. He won on a technical knockout, the Albert Hall referee stopping the bout.

"I will now challenge Tiger Flowers for the world title," Milligan declared after the bout.

CLOTHES

Open Saturday evening until 9 P. M.

All day long on Opening Day retail merchants, clothing makers and customers visited us and complimented us on the values. "Wonderful Woolens." "Better clothes at $29 than I could sell you at that price wholesale." "Better 2 pant suits at $29 than I have seen at the price with one pant." These remarks from men who know values should mean much to the man in need of clothes.

All one price clothes

"BROCKLEY" clothes are more than a name. They are an idea! The idea of giving Boston men more than they have ever received before for $29. Giving them better woolens in 2-pant suits than most stores give in one-pant suits! Not alone wonderful values for Opening Day (as you may have already seen), but wonderful values for every day—good as opening values were, we intend to give even better ones. Nothing more than $29—nothing less than $29, day in, day out, whenever you come!

All wool clothes

"All wool clothes for $29," we hear you say. "But how can you do it?" We'll tell you how: first, we have only one price to worry about; second, we bought our own woolens, and had the suits made up for us. Thus we saved one profit on the woolens and saved one profit on the made-up suit. And third, we have very little expense. Everything sold for cash—no charge accounts. And a small organization with very little overhead.

Pennock's Second Victory Puts Yanks in Lead

Hafey got Koenig's fly in the Yanks fourth, which gave rise to George Herman Babe Ruth again. The fans had recovered from their terror of the Babe, and some of them booed him, which made him feel right at home. Sherdel sent one over that Dineen called a strike, then he threw four consecutive balls.

Hafey hit a high foul over left field that seemed about to fall beyond the fence that railed off the crowd from the field. Ruth came up out of deep left and grabbed the ball out of the air with his gloved hand as he banged against the fence. He whirled and threw the ball to the infield trying to catch Bell off first. It was a great play by the Babe. Bell tried to steal second and Severeid cut him down, Koenig taking the throw.

MEUSEL ADMITS YANKS HAD LUCK

By BOB MEUSEL
Outfielder for New York Yankees
Written Expressly for Universal Service

St. Louis, Oct. 8.—Some folks will say that luck enabled us to win that ten inning game. But don't forget that we fought to win that game, we never quit when the odds were against us and that twice we had come from behind to tie—and then we had to smack out a run that sent us into the winning [illegible]

Sure, we made plenty of fluke [illegible]. But don't forget that [illegible] pitcher is slow-ball[illegible] ... that are [illegible] ... are "Texas Leaguers."

He stopped us from knocking the old apple out of the park—but he didn't stop us from connecting with the ball.

We all figure that this series will end in New York on Saturday. It looks like Snocker against Alexander.

Gridiron Gossip

Capt. Broda of Brown hopes to get into the game tomorrow against Lehigh. The leader [illegible] has played in 21 games since he entered Brown. He received a kick in the back in practice which may keep him out of the contest. In the Brown lineup there will be Towle and Searles, ends; Hodge and Farthar, tackles; Kevorkian and Provenchee, guards; Considine, centre; Edes, quarter; Randall and Mischel, halves, and Lawrence, full.

Coach Hawley is trying a new pair of wings out for the Dartmouth eleven. [illegible] are Fuqua and Cole while he also used Al Fusonie, veteran end, and Herb Rubin, a guard of last year. The Saturday game will find Dartmouth trying their stuff against Virginia Poly Tech.

The Tufts Jumbo is off for Maine ready to clash with Bates College. Starting for the Medford aggregation will be Bowker and Fitzgerald, ends; Hanson and [illegible], tackles; Brown and Nuss [illegible], guards; Brennant, centre; Ellis, [illegible] Lroder, Marston and Clarke, backs.

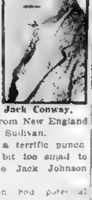
Coach Doug Lawson of Williams is so pleased with the work of Lawder and Anderson at guard that he has Hooven and Reed, two regulars on the sidelines. Playing Cornell tomorrow, Howe and [illegible] have been taking special instruction in [illegible]ting.

Sharkey Is Confident He Will Win From Wills

By JACK CONWAY

New York, Oct. 8.—Jack Sharkey is determined to defeat Harry Wills in their fifteen-round battle at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, on next Tuesday night so that he may give Boston and New England the exalted [illegible] in the world of swat they held in the days of the immortal John L. Sullivan.

The youthful Boston heavyweight considers himself much like a crusader of old who has set forth on a sacred mission. He says he will return to Boston next week with a victory over Wills to his credit. In such an event, he will then start shooting for a battle with Gene Tunney for the world's heavyweight crown.



Jack Conway.

Sharkey is the greatest heavyweight threat which has come from New England since the days of Sullivan.

Sam Langford, a terrific puncher, was a little bit too small to successfully battle Jack Johnson and Jim Jeffries.

Sandy Ferguson had potential fighting qualities, but he had a habit of choking up when the big moment arrived.

If Sharkey can come through with a win over Wills a Tunney-Sharkey bout will be in the offing for next Summer. The former marine will not be able to avoid the ex-gob any longer.

IN Wills, Sharkey will be battling a heavyweight whom many fans consider the king of his class. During the seven years Dempsey held the championship, he refused to risk an exchange of blows with the Brown Panther from New Orleans. In view of the fact he was offered as much as a million dollars for a bout with Wills, the fans have reason to believe that Jack was not certain of his ability to conquer Harry.

Tunney, both before and after the Dempsey fight, declared he would not meet Wills. Gene probably is not too confident of his ability to upset Paddy Mullins' sturdy fighter.

Sharkey has stepped in and taken a match which Dempsey and Tunney considered too tough.

WILLS 7 TO 5 CHOICE.

This is probably why the young Bostonian has become so popular here. His willingness to fight Wills, Tunney and anybody else whom the promoters might name has stamped him as one fighter who is absolutely unafraid.

[illegible] been working [illegible] this week. He has been boxing [illegible], Monte Munn, Martin O'Grady, Nick Fadil and Frankie Genaro. The Boston battler's ability to hit and box have made a decided impression with keen judges of ring men.

Wills was originally a 2 to 1 favorite in the betting, but now the price has been cut to 7 to 5. This has been due chiefly to the way Sharkey has slammed his sparring partners around.

Unlike most young fighters, as the day of a big battle draws near Sharkey is not the least bit nervous. Instead he is in a happy mood laughing and singing jazz songs as he gets ready for his gym workouts. He [illegible] the Wills bout [illegible] as a stepping stone to something bigger.

The Boston heavyweight will have youth on his side when he tackles Wills. Sharkey is 24 years of age. Wills claims to be 33, but he is nearer [illegible].

Tunney Takes Whipping in First Ring Battle of His Career

CHAPTER FIVE

This is the fifth chapter of [illegible] own story—written by himself—of his life and fights, [illegible] exclusively for the Boston Evening American

By GENE TUNNEY
World's Heavyweight Champion

I BEGAN sixteen years ago to develop myself. I learned that a soft and delicate education led to idleness, dissipation and ruin. Since the time of James J. Corbett boxing has experienced an uplift. Even in my short span, the game has taken on a totally new aspect. This is [illegible] with all human activities that move [illegible] cycles.

Gene Tunney

You will read how, in the reign of Edward III, many sports were prohibited by proclamation. Among the games then taboo was "cambrican," a species of golf deriving its name from the crooked bat with which it was played. This game was not [illegible] on account of any particular evil tendency in the sport itself, but because it "promoted leisure and diverted the minds of the people from practical pursuits."

Fancy the prohibition of golf today! Modern men now know that [illegible] safe and honest, healthful recreation [illegible] and promote national happiness and concord. [illegible] a crime preventive.

It has been thought that my first appearance in fighting trunks was in France. This is not the case. I had engaged in five preliminary bouts in New York and the East before enlisting with the Marines.

I had had no little schooling of the fist during my boyhood days in Greenwich Village. Certainly, I was not a brawler, but I had my quota of knuckle-tilts near West Twelfth street.

I was fairly adept with [illegible] among the youngsters of the Village. I was [illegible] and skinny. I had a long left arm and learned to jab [illegible] and perfected a snaky left against the Village opposition. That was between the ages of twelve and fourteen.

I had no idea, of course, of entering the ring as I understand those adolescent days of preparation. When I was about fifteen I had my first serious bout. It was against Willie Green. Willie had been [illegible] weight boxer, but had retired from competition. He had a job in the Village.

TUNNEY'S FIRST BOUT

One night a [illegible] arranged a benefit. I was [illegible] known in the [illegible] as a willing boxer. I was [illegible] to box Green as an added attraction. I consented.

What a night [illegible] Never before [illegible] so many boxing gloves [illegible] hurled at my face and form. Green hit me with everything but the Metropolitan Museum. I felt like [illegible] of Burton's Anatomy of Melancholy with the covers ripped off.

Willie would feint me into knots, and while I was trying to untie my arms, he would plop me on the chin with lefts and cross me [illegible] novice's jaw with stinging rights. When I got through I must have [illegible] a liver like a blacksmith's apron [illegible] did it feel.

But he FAILED TO KNOCK ME DOWN!

From that moment, I determined that no one would send me to my knees EVER. How then would I proceed? Well, I determined to TRAIN for my next bout. And I made up my mind the next one would be with the same flashy, sharp-shooting Willie Green. I began to study my own faults, and there were enough of them to fill a five-foot book shelf.

DEFEAT TEACHES LESSON.

I went to a gymnasium and boxed with other kids two nights a week. I began to step around, instead of standing flat footed or retreating, as I had done against Green.

I studied for several weeks how to lead, how to duck and side step—how to protect myself while aiming at the other fellow. Then came another big night. A second benefit was arranged, for, although I had been properly plastered, I had shown that I could take them even from a veteran. I was on edge. I was confident. But—

That blooming Willie Green again gave me a boxing lesson. This time it was not so bad. The victory was not quite so overwhelming. I landed a few on him and he scored less effectively and less often on me.

Nothing daunted, I went into another siege of training. I met Green twice more and in the fourth bout, I held him to a draw. My adherents were wild with ecstacy. I was overjoyed. Nothing could do but I meet Green for a fifth time. And then, [illegible] concentrated and worked. I [illegible] decision. Instead of be[illegible] over it, Green [illegible] pre[illegible] in the [illegible] to help me [illegible] some [illegible]

GENE FINALLY YIELDS

[illegible] I had become [illegible] of box[illegible] beyond [illegible] when [illegible] was felt [illegible] Village, the [illegible] district of [illegible]

After one of my [illegible] with Green, I was [illegible] by Billy Gibson, then [illegible] with Jim Buckley.

This famous little Irishman, who managed Gunboat Smith and made matches for the Sharkey A. C., wanted me to box a prelim. He waxed eloquent as he described the fame, wealth and satisfaction that awaited a successful pugilist.

But I was firm. I liked to box in the gym and I would battle in the street if necessary, but the career of a professional fighter seemed rather offish to me. Even Green couldn't persuade me until he said:

"Aw, I think you're afraid."

So I agreed to fight, but threatened to punch Green [illegible] again asked [illegible] professional [illegible]

I was afraid of only one thing—that the lure of the boxing game would get hold of me and that I would become a fighter.

Students in the University of Hard Knocks [illegible] to learn just what I learned in my bouts with Green. [illegible]

[illegible] those [illegible] Alger books is a real [illegible] I know this applies to boxing, golf, swimming and other sports and I presume that it applies to the lives of professional men.

Tomorrow Tunney will tell how he became a fighter and why.

Treat Picks Harvard to Lose; Yale and Princeton to Win

not come through as we hoped. It has been, in the past, [illegible] for Princeton's teams to fall down when they are reported [illegible] excellent material, and to be teams of destiny, either winning [illegible] or the 'Big Three' series when the outlook had been reported [illegible] such as last year and 1922. Princeton can't help but win tomorrow's game even if the line folds up, for Prendegast and Slagle can be depended upon to make some sort of scoring for the Tigers.

Princeton 17—Washington & Lee 0.

Brown-Lehigh (1925, no game)

Brown meets Lehigh, a team which to date is decidedly weak and its showing against fair opposition hasn't even been good. [illegible] Percy Wendall taking over the coaching regime, Lehigh was always looked upon as a formidable opponent by all big teams. There must be [illegible] lack of co-operation or the material has ceased to find the way to [illegible]

On the other hand Brown seems to be doing well with the new McLaughary system and although the Bears aren't anywhere near as strong as last year, I expect that they will give a good account of themselves, also the schedule is much lighter.

Brown should win tomorrow's game by 13 to 0.

Notre Dame-Minnesota (1925, Minnesota 19, Notre Dame 7)

These two big midwestern elevens will meet in the headliner of tomorrow's gridiron battles with everything looking about equal. Rockne versus Clipse Spears. By fast thinking and just as strong physically elevens, Rockne's material should overcome the experienced Minnesota eleven which will fight hard, this being typical of all Spears coached teams. Rockne's defense and his well drilled offensive is [illegible] to regain that position in the football world which brought Notre Dame the championship of the country in 1924. Minnesota will be slower mentally and physically and with the mental edge favoring Notre Dame.

I look for a close game being won ten to seven in favor of Notre Dame.

Budget Rescues Family From Deep Despair

Budget Chat No. 172

By MARTHA LEE

YESTERDAY I quoted a letter which told how a mother budgeted so successfully that her boy was able to take part in his school sports instead of spending his time doing odd jobs around town.

Here is a letter where the budget worked equally well, but in an entirely different way.

Mrs. A. H. B. writes: "Perhaps you would like to know what budgeting has done for my family. We started it last spring. I was in despair, because my boys and girls were so careless with their clothing, so heedless about the home and utterly without any sense of money value.

"My husband earns about as much as the average man in our neighborhood, but we didn't get anywhere nor what we should out of it, and were always a step or two ahead of our bills at the end.

"One day Mildred, my fourteen-year-old daughter, asked me for a new dress. I asked her where she thought it was coming from. She said she didn't know, but I could manage it if I wanted to.

"Then she added that if she was running the family finances I could be pretty sure she would know when and where to get the money and she wouldn't wait until the last minute, either.

"That cut and I sat right down and listed our expenses as nearly as I could, to show her just what we were up against. Only I didn't know what our food averaged, or how much to allow for our clothing, or exactly where the money did go.

"So, I tucked my figures out of sight and changed the subject. But during the next month I did keep an accurate account and got my husband to go over it with me. When we had real figures in black and white, we called the children in and showed them exactly how things stood.

"And they both said, 'Why in the world didn't you tell us before? We would have been glad to lend a hand if we had known you really needed more money to run things.'

"The next day Bob went down to the grocery store and got himself a job for afternoons and Saturdays. Mildred went around to call on the neighbors and came home with her spare time all dated up to take care of their babies.

"Now they are both active little money earners, and right on their tip toes. Both intend to go to college and have started their college funds in the bank.

"Maybe Dad and I aren't proud. We started budgeting and have kept it right up. I don't see why I didn't do it long ago. My children are the finest little partners a mother would want, but it took real figures to show them in the first place."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Here is a prospective bride, Miss C. K., asking for a budget. She will have $30 a week. Rent is $7.50, insurance $2. Asks if she could afford to pay $4 a week on furniture. Asks how much she should allow for heat, gas, light, savings, personal, etc. They have an automobile and wants to know if they can afford to run it and how much to allow for it. Anxious to start right. Will have no back bills except $250 on furniture.

A standard budget for $30 will give you $3 for savings and insurance, $6.50 for shelter and business carfares, $10 for food, including business lunches; $4 for clothing, $4 for operating, out of which comes heat, light, gas, telephone, laundry and small household supplies, not food under $1, and $2.50 for personal.

Out of personal comes all the expenses of operating a pleasure car, including garage rent, also the furniture payments. You can see right off that you are going to be very short here. Your rent is also higher than the standard budget allows and it is difficult to see where you can pare off anything from your other allotments, unless, possibly, $2 weekly from clothing to add to shelter.

Miss A. P. P. has been working six years as stenographer. Is now making $24 a week. Unable to save a cent or carry any insurance. Is paying $12 a week board. Asks how to budget.

I am afraid the leak is through your board money. A $24 budget will only give you $10.80 to cover board, business carfares and lunches. It leaves $2.40 for savings and insurance, $3.60 for clothing, $3.60 for operating, which in the business girl's budget means stationery, postage, toilet articles, laundry, shoe shines, manicures and telephones; $3.60 for personal, out of which comes all dentist's bills, gifts and church contributions. It is barely possible that you can spare $1 a week from your operating allowance to add to your board money.

F. H. E. is about to be married and asks if he can afford to go housekeeping on $35 a week. A $35 budget lines up $3 weekly for savings and insurance, $7.50 for shelter, including business carfares, $10.50 for food, including business lunches; $5 for clothing, $5 for operating, which means heat, gas, light, telephone, laundry, etc., and $4 for personal which must cover all other expenses.

Dear Mrs. H. E. D. The budget you have outlined in your letter is practically the same as the standard budget for $48, which gives $5 for savings and insurance, $9.60 for shelter, $12 for food, $7 for clothing, $7 for operating and $7.50 for personal.

Any Port in a Storm — is welcomed and any red in a frock seems to be equally acceptable this season. All the lovely, dull shades of red ranging from that of the Autumn leaf, through those with the brownish tints—port, Burgundy, dregs of wine, to reds with the bluish tinge of beet red and the lilac tones.

Flattering Flat are the huge chiffon and velvet flowers that are used by Paris to spread over one entire shoulder of the extremely decollete evening gowns. Especially flattering is this style to the girl who affects the extremely close bob for it adds feminine fluffiness to her appearance, without being in the least bunchy and detracting from the grace of her shoulderline. These flowers are of shades to contrast with the frock; they avoid matching tones to prevent monotony.

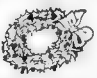
WHATEVER you choose for the Big Dinner the Big Day, you want it served up in finest style.



The meal will be a real event, long remembered by all lucky enough to be present, if the stuffing is made the good old-fashioned way with Bell's Seasoning.

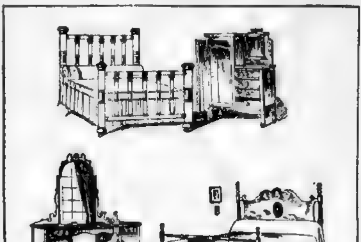
Furnishing the Home

By Marian Moore



EVERYONE learns from his own mistakes; but we can, too, if we are wise, benefit by the errors of those who came before us. An excellent housewife can be too thrifty and too dutiful; for instance, the misguided one who purchased the huge brass bed and the wardrobe dresser-chest-of-drawers shown above.

Undoubtedly these pieces proved serviceable enough, but what element of joy or beauty did they introduce into the lives of their owners? The straight-lined effect is cold, stiff, monastic; the proportions are unnecessarily massive; the mirror, too small for the surrounding mass, seems a begrudged concession to human frailty. The design lacks science, contrast and tradition; the texture of undisguised brass and metal is irreconcilable with soft silky draperies, furry rugs and dainty touches; lastly, the three-in-one combination belongs to the makeshift class and has no decorative value.

To these compare the lovely modern set, two pieces of which are illustrated in the lower part of the picture.

A generous, though tactful use of curves, softens the rectangular structure, a general effect of lightness has been achieved by the use of slender posts and cutout panels, the large mirror emphasizes the feminine note and, cleverly placed, reflects more light into the room.

Martha Lee Talks on Food Fair

FOOD FAIR first, for salads come every day in the year, but the Boston Food Fair for only two fleeting weeks, beginning Monday, October 11.

I want to remind you again to save plenty of time to see all the booths, ask all the questions you wish about foods, and taste all the samples offered. The observing housewife can learn more about the advanced art of feeding the human family in one afternoon at Horticultural Hall, than from hours of poring over books on economical cooking and balanced rations.

And go early. Be among the first. Why? Because every woman visiting the Boston Food Fair stands a chance of getting absolutely free a $165 Savage Electric Washer and Dryer. Each of the first 250 women who purchase tickets, each day of the Fair, will receive a numbered ticket which will entitle her to participate in a grand drawing, the last day of the fair, when the holder of the lucky number wins the Savage Electric Washer and Dryer. That's one way to keep out of hot water, isn't it?

As you know I want you to go as my guest, to the extent of saving fifteen cents on your entrance ticket. If you will send in your name and address, and also the number of tickets you can use, I shall ship you back the Martha Lee Rebate Tickets on the next mail.

Then your admission will cost you only twenty cents instead of the regular thirty-five cents. And be sure to call at Booths 116, 117 and 118, the Martha Lee Hospitality Booths, and say "Hello!" I'll be waiting for you, with Welcome on the doormat.

And now I want to chat a bit about salads. The salad is the most obliging and kindly mixture ever invented for our pleasure. With a bit of chicken and a few leaves of crisp lettuce, we can make a reception dish.

Usually in planning the menu for the week, I arrange to have a vegetable salad, a date and nut salad (or a cream cheese combination) a cabbage salad and a potato one operated over the seven days. This gives a big range, with a wide variety, and nicely uses up about all the odds and ends my ice box holds.

Fruit Salad — Two apples, 3 oranges, ½ cup marshmallows, one head lettuce, ½ cup white cherries or Malaga grapes.

Cut oranges and apples in dice. Cut cherries or grapes in halves. Arrange lettuce on salad plates and place fruit in centre. Over the fruit put marshmallows which have been cut in quarters. Serve with this fruit salad dressing:

Fruit Salad Dressing—One-third cup orange juice, one and one-half tablespoons lemon juice, one egg, one cup sugar, one-half pint heavy cream, few grains salt.

Mix fruit juices, add egg, slightly beaten, and sugar, and cook in double boiler ten minutes. Cool and fold in cream, beaten until stiff, then add salt. Serve with any combination of fruit arranged on lettuce leaves.

Date and Nut Salad—One cup dates, one cup celery, one-quarter cup nuts, one head lettuce.

Remove stones from dates, fill cavity with piece of walnut. Place on lettuce, put chopped celery in centre. Serve with mayonnaise.

Yours for more salads.

LEA & PERRINS SAUCE

Yes! Kellogg has improved upon oatmeal!

MOST people thought it couldn't be done! "You can't make a better hot cereal than oatmeal," they said.

But Kellogg has done it! You can prove it right now. Ask your grocer for Kellogg's New Oata. Boil it just three minutes in water.

Then enjoy that wonderful new flavor! Notice how light and fluffy New Oata is. How different from soggy, gluey oatmeal.

And then remember this. New Oata is a blend of both oats and whole wheat, including the bran. It combines the nourishing elements of both. That's why it is so much more healthful.

Can you imagine any other hot cereal as good? Your grocer has Kellogg's New Oata.

The WOMAN GAME or "GLITTER" by KATHARINE BRUSH

A Story of College Life; a Fast and Furious Romance

CHAPTER XL

"GOOD enough for what?" asked Jock a[illegible]. He had pulled Yvonne on to his knees, and hence had little interest in the forth[illegible] answer, if any.

She put her hands against his chest and scrutinized him soberly. "Jock Hamil, how would you like to go into partnership with me—no, wait, my dear. I'm serious about this. Listen to me just a minute. I have to work—keep still till I finish for goodness' sake—and you're going to work too, when you get your lazy old self around to it, so why shouldn't we work together, playing and singing in a—"

"Salvation Army!" crowed Jock. "Just the thing!"

Yvonne disengaged herself and stood up, vastly dignified. "All right, if you refuse to be sensible—"

"I will be! Word of honor. Sit down here again where you belong. Where are we going to play and sing? Tell me."

"Did you ever hear of Terrace Tavern?"

"Rum joint out toward Pelham? Yah, sure, I've heard of it."

"It's not a 'rum joint!'" remonstrated Yvonne. "It's a very nice roadhouse, one of the nicest around New York."

"Question: Is there such a thing as a nice roadhouse?" grinned Jock. "Alas, I fear not, the boys and girls being as they are nowadays. But go on. This is all very interesting."

"Terrace Tavern," pursued Yvonne after a reproachful pause, "is run by a man named August Schultz, who used to be at the Cafe Mandalay when I was there, two—no, nearly four years ago. I went out to see him the other day and he gave me a job. I'm to sing a couple of songs every night, beginning a week from Monday. I was going to have piano accompaniment, but this will be lots better, and I know that when he hears you play he'll—"

"You're going to do nothing of the sort!"

"Yes I am, my dear. I told you I'd have to do something to earn a little money. And this is the only thing I know how to do—except drive a car, which doesn't help any."

Jock was serious enough now. "If you think I'm going to have you singing for a bunch of raucous drunks every night——"

"I did it for years, remember," Yvonne reminded him. "And besides——" One velvety arm curved about his neck and her cheek was cool against his—— "and besides, Jock Hamill, I'll have you there to look out for me. Won't I? Though of course, I shall do it whether you are there or not. I'm determined to take the job, and it's useless to argue with me—you ought to know that by this time. But oh, my dear if you would come too and work with me"

"I can't understand," she observed, as Jock sat scowling silent, "why you aren't more enthusiastic. Dearest boy, can't you see what fun it would be? We go somewhere to dance almost every night anyway—why not get paid for doing it, while we're about it? Wouldn't you like that better than sitting poked off in some stupid office somewhere? Just for awhile. Just till we're married—naturally. I wouldn't want you to be a cabaret entertainer all your life, with the brains you've got and the education you've had——"

"It's not me I'm worrying about'" spoke up Jock with more earnestness than attention to grammar. "I wouldn't mind it. In fact, I think it would be great stuff, for a few weeks—snappy way to put in the time while I'm making up my mind what I want to do with myself. But you Yvonne—I don't care what you say, there's no reason on God's earth why you—"

Yvonne interrupted this speech with a long kiss full on the lips. "That's my way of saying 'shut up, Jock Hamil,'" she explained sweetly.

"It's a great way! I could use a lot of those. But listen, about this Terrace Tavern business—"

She kissed him again.

After which he continued to say, "But listen—" at two-minute intervals all the rest of the afternoon. Not protestingly; gleefully, for the kiss each repetition earned him. And protest, thus neglected in the heyday of more palatable matters, withered and died away.

Often in the days that followed he wondered what had become of it. He had not intended to give in so easily; he hadn't intended to give in at all! But Yvonne now obviously considered the thing decided and was going ahead with preparations in a manner so final that the time for discussion seemed past and irrevocable. And Jock, after his preliminary puny splashing, swam with the stream. "Can't do anything now," he assured himself comfortably. "Too late now. We're all set."

And they were. After arduous hours of practice they had "tried out" before August Schultz and been accepted as a team.

Jock had rather expected that his mother would prove difficult to handle in this contretemps but, as he afterward informed Yvonne, "You can't jar that lady!" Mrs. Hamill gave vent to a few calm whys and wherefores, characterized the whole affair as "simply mad" and washed her hands of it. To Saunders Lincoln only did she confide her true attitude.

"There wasn't any use making a fuss," she said. "Though goodness knows I wanted to! Just imagine Jock, of all the boys in the world, contenting himself with playing the banjo in a cheap wayside dance hall! I don't know what's come over him. Yes, I do too, it's that Yvonne, shes has him wrapped around her little finger. He's so dazzled he can't see beyond his own nose. If I were not so sure this was just a phase—but it is a phase. It's got to be!"

"What's Yvonne like?" Saunders Lincoln queried.

"Beautiful as a dream, wise as all the ages, shallow, superficial, rather notoriously immoral—I've had her looked up, of course—and at least six years older than Jock," said Mrs. Hamill all in a breath.

"And, strange to say, really in love with him, unless my intuition deceives me, as it never did before. Why she doesn't marry him is quite beyond me, for she could have him tomorrow if she whistled. He says she's trying to make him wait a year. I hope she succeeds! She won't be able to get him so easily in a year, if she did but realize! She'd destroy him in that time, you know, Saunders. In the worst way. Not by a single blow—he'd recover from that—but by a slow insidious poison."

"Did you tell Jock all this?"

Mrs. Hamill glared irritably. "My dear Saunders, don't be such a ninny! Do you think I'd help this affair along by opposing it? Indeed I did not tell him, nor shall I unless worst comes to worst. I shall sit tight, and let the thing work itself out. And continue to pretend I'm delighted with Yvonne, so that in the event they decide to get married I'll know about it in time to get busy."

Making of a Husband

By Ann Lisle

THEN as we got out of the elevator he took my arm with a little gesture of gallantry that meant nothing but his Southern way of repaying a woman for trying to be polite to him. He steered me forward down the corridor and past the wicker furnished lounging room where early diners were having their coffee. I felt someone looking at me. I turned my head mechanically. Carlini retained his firm grip on my forearm—and then I saw Jim!

At sight of Jim my heart began to pound so I felt that I should suffocate. His eyes held mine for a moment, then wavered, and he turned his head away with evident deliberateness. I steadied myself against young Carlini's arm and then moved forward under a definite sense of propulsion as Diane Petruzzi swept her party by the coffee lounge and out to the main dining room of the roof garden.

And as we followed the head waiter to our table, Diane linked her arm in mine and striding along well in the lead of her party, she whispered:

"The nerve of Jim Harrison! Didn't you see him start forward? I believe he would have accosted you before all these people if I hadn't given him one look that told him I'd match him scene for scene if he tried to bother you."

"He couldn't have bothered me," fell from my cold lips as the captain held out my chair and Diane gave me a little push that made me tumble down into it, grateful for the confusion of seating arrangements which covered my discomfiture.

I was near collapse. To have been so near Jim, to have been on the verge of hearing his voice, feeling the touch of his hand—and then to have been defeated, was horrible. At first I was furiously angry at Diane. Then I began to see that her blundering was well meaning and not officious and that I would be an ingrate to feel the slightest resentment.

"A penny for your thought," said a voice at my ear.

It was my young friend Carlini. So I caught back the acid answer that was on the tip of my tongue, for I could fancy the result to Diane's plans if I drove the youngster back on himself now after encouraging him to think I was a "friendly audience." Once I let him feel that I was a "hostile critic," I would probably lose all opportunity to win his confidence.

"They are not worth a penny," I said, with comfortable security that he would accept the banality.

I couldn't think of anything else to say. I couldn't think at all. My blood was racing through my body and pounding at my head, as I kept asking myself:

"What did Jim think when he saw me leaning on this boy's arm? Jim doesn't dream how I'm having a fine time. He thinks I'm suffering. He probably thinks I'm heartless. He always was so jealous. He is probably furious at me—or hurt—suffering maybe——"

I hauled myself up short with a scornful laugh as I remembered that I had no longer the power to make Jim jealous—to make him feel anything! He had minded my laughing and chatting with men who aroused his jealousy once upon Wife or Mother?

By Beatrice Fairfax

THEY WERE SO HAPPY BUT HE PREFERRED MOTHER SO SHE IS LONELY UNTIL HE COMES BACK

SINCE the beginning of marriage as an institution—countless heartaches have been caused by the divided love of a man for his wife and his mother.

The following letter is typical of many I receive in its lament: "My husband prefers his mother to me."

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"With whom do you think a son should spend most of his time, his mother or his wife?

"Do you think he should spend every evening with his mother while his wife sits at home alone?

"My mother-in-law is a wonderful woman—very good and kind—and I think a great deal of her. But don't you think she should tell her son to stay at home with his wife at least one or two evenings each week? I am so lonesome for him.

"When I ask my husband to be sure to come home for supper, he usually replies yes—that he will be home by a certain time. I have supper ready for him. Then instead, he goes to his mother's. Do you think this is right?

"If I ask him to go to a movie he very seldom agrees to take me. But three or four nights a week he takes [illegible] ther.

"He tells me he doesn't care much for me [illegible] and it is only f[illegible] sake of the children that he [illegible] with me. He also says that there isn't any other woman in the [illegible] like his mother. He prefers [illegible] to me.

"Do you think it is right for a mother to make a baby out of a son [illegible] twenty [illegible]? She is always patting her arm around him and pet[illegible] [illegible] he loves to sit on the [illegible] of her chair. [illegible] her in [illegible] but she looks [illegible]

UNHAPPY W[illegible]

Dear [illegible] wife your fate is [illegible]. Your rival is not another [illegible] one day, let us [illegible] own grateful sons [illegible]

[illegible] to make yourself as charming, interesting and attractive [illegible] as you were in [illegible] when he first f[illegible] in love with you. Then in time the old affection for you will again glow in his heart.

No [illegible] wife nor [illegible] other comes first in a man's affections. For love can't be measured.

A man can give a heartful of love to his mother and a heartful to his wife. And he will understand and love each of these two women better because of his affection for the other.

'The Secret Studio'; Was He Laughing at Rosemary?

Exotic as he was exotic, cruel as he was cruel. You couldn't love them as you could the gentler sweeter flowers, the little blue violets and the good hearted marigolds that grew in Pa's garden. You couldn't love him as you had Phil—sweetly. Or Larry—warmly, happily.

She caught her breath and set the flowers down.

"Miss Merton!"

"Yes?" Her voice came from a long distance. Her eyes rested on Mr. Graham's sallow face. Heavens, how greeny-white he was. Like a toadstool that grew in a basement! Compared to Sloan Whitney he looked positively dead.

"Yes?" she said again. Why didn't he speak up? Not that she was interested in anything he could possibly say!

"I won't have that!" Graham's voice was harsh. "I can't have customers sending the clerks flowers. It doesn't look right. You'll have to explain to Mr. Whitney!"

She bit her lip and looked away. Looked full into the pale sneering eyes of "Snooky" Graham, whom she hadn't seen since the day he asked her to meet him on the corner, and she had turned on her heel and crossed the street, leaving him standing.

Would he speak to her?

He came nonchalantly over to the desk, picked up the card that his father had flung angrily into the box.

"Oh, he's rushing you, eh? Well, that's a pretty note."

He knew Sloan Whitney? Her heart was pounding. A minute ago she had been aflame with the pride of conquest, and now she was like a hunted thing, with old Mr. Graham glaring as if he would like to wrench the purple blooms from her, and Snooky sneering in his superior, secret way.

The telephone rang. She could answer it—and get away.

But no, old Mr. Graham was quicker. He walked off and left her with Snooky. She closed the box, tied the green string around it with fingers that shook. But she wouldn't ask about Whitney—no matter how much she wanted to know.

"Yeh, I could tell you a lot about that bird. A great hand with the horses and the women. A young lady I know—Cecelia Lansing—maybe you've seen her name in the society columns? Well, Cissie has a wonderful voice—she'd be in opera if it wasn't for the fine old family name and everything—Cissie got to going with him, and her mother simply put her foot down and—"

Her heart leaped. What was this Snooky was saying? Going with some girl? Then he couldn't be married!

And aloud she said: "Why tell me? It's nothing to me. And, besides, isn't he married."

Now it was Snooky's turn to shake with inward excitement. He leaned closer. His voice was low, [illegible] "Where did you [illegible] that?"

"Oh, I don't know. It's q[illegible] time. I don't really know."

He saw she didn't, and turned away. "S'long," he said. "And say if you should happen to find out, would you let me know?"

As if she'd let him know anything. The [illegible]!

"I'd rather have a corsage of orchids from him than a diamond and platinum wedding ring from somebody like Al!"

Just one more peek! She lifted the lid, gently. Why carry them home in the box? Why not wear them? There were two long pins in the box. She pinned them tremblingly to her coat. Well, why not? There could never be any more! She set her mouth grimly. Then enjoy these to the full.

She walked regally, head high, eyes straight ahead. She could see without really looking down, the purple loveliness at her breast. She [illegible] to let a passing car go by [illegible] a horn honked, insistently. Calling someone. She looked idly toward the curb.

He was calling her! He was over there in the sand-colored roadster, drawing up to the curb. Beckoning her to come.

She must have crossed the street, got through the traffic somehow, for suddenly he was standing beside her, hat in one hand, cane in the other, and she was looking into his dark, half smiling eyes, whose message she could not read.

"The orchids are beautiful. See I'm wearing them. But, Mr. Graham would rather—"

Oh, she was putting it so clum[illegible]y. He was still smiling. Was he laughing at her? And all the [illegible] she was explaining, breath[illegible], in little rushes, that he [illegible] send her any more.

"[illegible] where shall I send them?"

"Mr. Graham said—"

"The devil with Mr. Graham! [illegible] you any [illegible]? Don't [illegible] some place? You like [illegible] you do. I like [illegible] and I can't send them [illegible] I don't know half a [illegible] people in this town. There's [illegible] to send them to [illegible] so much." His voice was faintly coaxing. "Come, don't cheat me out of a little pleasure."

And she never knew, not even the next day when she had had time to [illegible] it all over, just how she had [illegible] to give him Nina's address as her own. But she had, and [illegible] written it carefully in a li[illegible] notebook, smiling as [illegible] wrote.

Thought his case was hopeless
Resinol cleared away pimples in a week

Lexington, Mass., March 5:—"I had been suffering from shaving pimples on my neck for years and, I believe, had tried everything under the sun for them without avail. One day on a friend's advice, I purchased some of your Resinol Ointment and was astonished at the quick results. After a week's constant use, the pimples disappeared completely, leaving the skin clear and fresh. I had thought my case was hopeless, so you can readily see why I was overjoyed at this cure! You can be sure that henceforth you have one more loyal booster for your product." (Signed) Fred J. Fox, 8 Bloomfield St.

MEDBURY SAYS---

THE police departments in several cities have put a ban on music after 11 p m. This is a good idea and if some people never played the piano again it would be too often.

ELEVEN o'clock at night is a sensible time to stop pianos, but ukuleles should be burned at 8:30.

AND saxaphone players ought to have their wind shut off at 9.45.

ONE fellow used to make so much noise that the people in the next apartment couldn't worry about the rent in peace.

HE played so loud that even the girls at the switchboard couldn't get any sleep.

HE said he had to blow his saxophone all night because the installment house was coming to take it back in the morning.

AND he wanted to get his money's worth out of the first payment.

SOME cities are very strict about people being quiet. An Ohio judge fine a man $8 the other day for having asthma.

THE court told him that he'd have to do his wheezing in the daytime.

HE said the reason he stayed awake was that he had insomnia. The judge advised him to go to bed and sleep it off.

DAILY SHORT STORY

THE LOCKET

By Mabel McKee

THE trustees of the Wier home for orphan children delighted in boasting that the children who were raised there always came back when they were grown

Most of them came back to visit. But Mamie Lou Lester was coming back for a job. She said so to the old gardener with a gay shrug of her shoulders and a beautiful sort of drawl. When he saw her struggling with her heavy suitcase he decided she was another applicant for the position of manager of cottage No. 3

He asked her with the delicacy which made him so popular with cottage managers and other lady employees at the home "May I help you with your bag, Miss? I always delight in helping visitors up to the hill."

Mamie Lou most flirted with the old man then, despite her mature years. "I'm not a-visiting," she announced slangily. "I'm looking for that cottage manager job and I hope I'll get it."

The old man watched her all the way up the long walk. She stopped at the memorial fountain and put her fingers into the cold water. Caressingly she touched the petals of a yellow water lily. If the gardener could have heard the beautiful murmur in her rich voice as it said, "Stevie, Stevie," he would have opened his eyes wide. For Mamie Lou didn't use the same beautiful tones in speaking to him as she did in addressing her soul.

The old man watched her in the dusk that evening, wandering around the porch of cottage No. 3, touching the Virginia creeper which climbed the wall, the peony hedge and the fern bed under the water spout. Touching them as if she loved them! And he said wisely to himself, "She's been here before. Maybe she was raised here. I wager she was."

He walked closer so he could see the grace of Mamie Lou's body, now dressed in the [illegible] of yellow lawn dresses, her [illegible] of midnight hair piled [illegible] head, her big dusky eyes wide with some secret wonder.

Mamie Lou was whispering to herself, "Stevie—Stevie—is it too late?"

She was thinking of the day when she had first come to the home, a timid little girl of seven from a cozy parsonage, sent [illegible] a cruel accident which had [illegible] both her father and mother. In her tight black dress, which the women of the church had made for her, she had been a forlorn little creature, indeed.

The other little orphans stood away from her. They had learned of her tragedy from the matron before she came. With wide eyes they had watched her curl up into a hammock on the side porch and sob as if her young heart would break.

Then Stephen had come, a big, fifteen year old boy with his arm full of bundles. He had been an orphan at the home, too, until three months before when he had taken a job at the store a few squares away. He lived with the owner, as part of his pay. He always brought candy on his pay day.

After he had given them the "goodies" he went over to the hammock and put his arm around Mamie Lou's shaking shoulders. "Wouldn't you like to drive my horse?" he began. "I've got a lot of deliveries to make and your cottage manager always lets me take a little girl to help me."

Mamie Lou didn't stop crying but she clung to Stephen's arm with both of her hands. "I can drive," she sobbed softly. "I drove my papa's horse for him. But he's dead now."

Stephen had lifted her into the rig. He turned her so that he could see her face and eyes. "Beautiful," he said, more to himself than to her. "Why you're beautiful. You're going to be my girl."

After that Stephen had called every day to see Mamie Lou. He gave her a locket on her birthday because she wanted one so badly. When she wanted his picture placed in it Stephen had one made of a great awkward freckle-faced boy. They continued their palship until an aunt from a western city came for Mamie Lou. "Ia's good-bye, Beautiful," Stephen told her then. "But you'll come back to me some day. I'm gonna wait."

Now Mamie Lou was still whispering, "Stephen Stephen," as she touched the ferns planted under the spout where he had talked to her almost ten years ago. She, meantime, had had a fling at a career—Stephen had grown to be the town's leading physician.

Mamie Lou had not planned to see him so soon, but Tiny Betty Barnes of Cottage Number Three had the croup that night. All the other little girls in the cottage were sure she was dying when she began to grow blue in the face, after a choking spell. "The old manager allus called the doctor right away when she got that way," they said "Dr. Warren, used to be an orphan here. He doesn't charge the home anything so they call him when we're the least bit sick."

Frightened by the gasping of the child, Mamie Lou called Dr. "Stevie." And for an hour after his arrival she battled with him to save the little girl. But all through the siege Stephen had not seemed to recognize Mamie Lou, his old companion.

When the child was sleeping quietly Mamie Lou walked over to the windows of the dormitory. Her hand reached out and caressed the Virginia creeper exactly as it had done that afternoon. The doctor saw the gesture. "Love it?" he asked. "I do, too. I planted the first of it when I was an orphan boy here. It's climbed high through the years."

Mamie Lou whispered to herself: "He doesn't know me. He doesn't."

Stephen smiled whimsically then at the new cottage manager "There was a little girl here once—with dark curls and great lovely eyes," he began. "I told her once she was going to be my girl!"

Then Mamie Lou couldn't stand it any longer. She drew the cheap little locket from around her neck and handed it rather shyly to the young doctor. "The little girl came back," she said, "and you didn't even know her!"

"Oh, Marie Lou!—I know you—'

"Stevie!" she gasped,—"then I haven't changed so terribly.

"You're lovely—lovely—the full blown rose—my Mamie Lou'. But why, with all your wealth—why have you come back here—this way, a worker, I mean?"

"Well, you know, I lost my husband a year or so ago. Loneliness I suppose, drove me back to the scene of my childhood."

"You hurt me terribly by that sudden marriage of yours, girl. But you did me a good turn, too. There was nothing left—but study. I turned to it—happened to like medicine. You've been very instrumental in making me of service to the world—my small world.

"Oh, Stevie, you'll never understand Poverty—poverty—was all I had known my entire life. I did not realize how little money could buy, when I married a fortune!".

"Mamie-Lou," the doctor came closer. "You can turn your own mistake into a glorious joy, if you're unselfish enough to do so."

Something quavered in the woman's throat. Anticipation held her spellbound. "How?" she asked.

"Turn your money over to this orphanage. They need it—Heaven knows. Marie Lou, I've made good—I've enough for both of us—if you'll consider me—now——"

For answer she buried her head in his strong, deep shoulder, and murmured softly: "Stevie!"

SKIPPY One Mustn't Forget By Percy Crosby

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

THE most striking phenomenon the times is not the fact that there are so many girls who pet, but there are still a lot of girls who "walk home"!

• • •

After all it takes only one fly in the ointment one mosquito in the room, and one weakness in the man she loves, to ruin a woman's peace of mind.

• • •

A man's idea of a hard-boiled, cynical woman is one who won't believe him when he tells her something he doesn't mean.

The old-fashioned villain was a man who was always doing his worst to force the girl to marry him; the modern villain is one who is doing his level best to prevent her from marrying him.

• • •

A man will accept a girl's patent smile in lieu of a sense of humor before marriage—but after marriage, she's got to laugh in the RIGHT PLACE!

• • •

Many a bachelor naively attributes his popularity to his fatal charm, when it is based on nothing but his single blessedness.

• • •

"Sir, I want to marry your daughter is a quaint old formula that has been changed to, "Congratulations, you lucky old thing! I'm going to take your daughter off your hands!"

• • •

The love that will permit a man to wait twenty-four hours, before patching up a quarrel with a woman, is already in cold storage.

• • •

The tragedy of a bachelor's life is the number of girls he meets who want to make a better—and a sadder—man of him.

• • •

In 1930 Grandmother is going to be sufering from frost-bitten knees if the short skirts 'keep up."

BOBBIE AND HIS PA

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

I HAF been thinking, sed Ma to my dad last nite, about the grate Valew of littel things.

That is old stuff, sed Pa. I lerned all about that wen we used to reesite at skool,

Littel drops of water,
Littel gobs of sand,
Maik the mitey oshun
& the glorious land.

It seems to me that everything I say around here is old stuff, sed Ma, so I will say nothing whatevver, sed Ma.

Not a chanst for you evver to git that way, sed Pa. You have spoke yure mind evver since I can reecall, sed Pa, & you will be speeking yure mind wen the room is darkend & the Grim Reeper glides in to taik you Henta, sed Pa.

A lot you will cair, sed Ma. You will be looking around for a new companyun within a weak, sed Ma.

Not me, sed Pa, nevver aggen after the first time, Pa sed.

You two fokes give me a pane, I sed. You are aways talking about croke-ing & both of you are as helthy as Jeck Dempsey, I sed. I will prubly croke beefoar eether of you, I sed. Then I bet you will be sorry you dident pay moar attention to me while I was here, I sed.

Do you X-peck to parrish er, Bobbey, sed Pa.

You nevver can tell, I sed. Deth somtimes claims the ung & fare, I sed. I red that in a skool book.

Tuff littel geezers like you do not die yung, Bobbie, sed Pa. You will be around on this plannit till you are about 90 yeers of age, Bobbie, sed Pa.

I hoap so, I sed, but sumtimes I haf a hunch I will die yung, in the flush of my career, like it sed in the poiper about Vaentino, I sed.

Ma laffed. Bobbie is gitting moar like you every day, she sed to my dad. He is so con-seeted.

Why like me? sed Pa. You seam to haf a pritty good opinyun of yureself, sed Pa.

Thare is not a conseeted hair in my hed, sed Ma.

No, sed Pa, hair nevver gits conseeted, but thare is quite a conseeted hed under yure hair, tho, sed Pa.

Then Pa & Ma both beegan to sulk & thay dident say no moar, but if thay left it to me I wud say the two (2) of them is pritty chesty. It taiks groan up peepul to be reely swelled up, kids cant hold a candil to them.

CORRECT MANNERS

WEARING A WEDDING RING

MY DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am a young married woman and I want to know which is the correct way to wear my rings. A says that you put your engagement ring on first, and then your wedding ring. B says that your finger should have no rings on it when your wedding ring is put on your finger, that you first put on your wedding ring and then your engagement ring. I notice that most people wear them as B says. Please tell me which is correct.

VIOLET.

B IS correct. There is a distinct rule and custom that the wedding ring must not be put above the engagement ring. The wedding ring is put on the finger first. That is why, during the ceremony, the bride does not wear her engagement ring on "the" finger; she either leaves her engagement ring at home, or wears it on her right hand.

A GOOD LIGHT NEEDED

By LUCY LOWELL

THEY were having an exhibition.

There were a great many workmen rushing about the big gallery—men with stepladders and hammers, and electricians stringing up wires here and there. And the artist himself was directing them.

"We've got to have good light," he kept saying as if that were the only matter of any importance.

He was extremely careful about the lights. "It's got to be good," he kept repeating. "They won't show right if it isn't."

And there, in the dim room, the paintings were just oil on canvas—monotonous things, rather ugly.

But the preparation was over finally. A switch was turned; globes blazed.

And every bit of moulding became like a window-frame, opening upon a bit of sea, country, a line of hills—all life, color, charm. Not just painting—beauty captured and held before the eyes.

"Ah," said the artist, "a good light!"

I happened, just then, to remember something; a bit from Emerson: "We must be as courteous to a man as to a picture which we are willing to give the benefit of a good light."

SMART SAYINGS OF CLEVER CHILDREN

Little Frances had heard her father admonish the boy about using the brake on the auto so much, telling him that it would soon wear out. One day, while riding, the boy, having passed his destination, started to back the car, whereupon Frances called out, "Teddie, don't back too far; you'll wear the backer-out."

BABIES WHO LOOK VERY OLD

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.
Former President of the American Medical Association.

YOU, like most people, may have seen at some time a baby suffering from the severe wasting disease known as "marasmus."

Such babies almost form a family group. They look old and pinched; their skin is wrinkled, toneless and hangs in folds on the extremities. They have hardly an ounce of fat on their bodies and very little flesh. The bony points stand out sharply and make them look almost like skeletons. The fontanelle—the "soft spot" on the head—is sunken. The eyes are large. They are very alert and sleep but little, but they have not the energy for much bodily movement.

As a rule their appetite is very poor (although a few are ravenous) and attempts to satisfy their hunger generally make them sick. The temperature is a degree or two below normal and varies irregularly. In the most severe cases the alteration in weight is a slow, steady fall when the diet is insufficient. When the diet is enriched the weight falls even more rapidly. Then there are often symptoms of fever, diarrhoea, etc. The pulse is slow and small, and the muscles, especially of the legs, are rigid. The stools vary greatly and little notice should be taken of them.

The complications are oedema—or dropsical swellings—which start in the legs and often become generalized, and bring an increase in weight. Infections of all kinds, e.g., in the skin, mouth and lungs, are liable to occur.

Inflammation of the middle ear is almost a feature of the disease and kidney trouble is frequent.

The chances of recovery depend on (a) how much weight has been lost, (b) the age of the child (the older the more hopeful), (c) the possibility of correct dietetic treatment, and (d) the child's resistance to infection.

Words of Wise Men.

Nothing is so easy as to deceive one's self; for what we wish, that we readily believe.—Demosthenes.

One man's word is no man's word; we should quietly hear both sides.—Goethe.

There is one antidote only for coquetry, and that is true love.—Deluzy.

The two most engaging powers of an author are to make new things familiar and familiar things new.—Johnson.

Little minds are tamed and subdued by misfortune; but great minds rise above it.—Washington Irving.

Brevity is the soul of wit.—Shakespeare.

There is nothing insignificant—nothing.—Coleridge.

Adoption of Hoover Water Conservation Program Vital

No sensible workman tries to get along without tools if he can afford to buy them. He can make things with his bare hands, but he can turn out twenty times more if given the right tools to work with.

The nation, as well as the individual, has tools. Among this country's most valuable and productive tools are its railroads, its factories, it mine and farm improvements, its improved waterways.

Though the United States is the richest nation in the world, it has neglected to harness the inland waters of the country to its use. They run off to the sea without performing the tenth part of their possible service in carrying our freight, generating our electricity and irrigating our farm lands.

Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, a great engineer, has selected the seven major water conservation projects which the nation immediately needs, as part of its equipment. His program is the most constructive thought in this country since the Panama Canal.

Congress should adopt the Hoover program for national construction, as follows:

The ship canal from the Great Lakes to New York;

The completed Mississippi Valley waterways from Chicago to New Orleans and from Pittsburgh to Kansas City;

The Cumberland and Tennessee power and navigation dams;

The protected intercoastal waterways from Maine to Texas;

Boulder Dam on the Colorado River, between Nevada and Arizona;

Power and irrigation works in the San Joaquin and Sacramento valleys;

Power and irrigation on the Columbia River.

Secretary Hoover demands local participation in the cost of financing his projects. So far as possible they will be made self-supporting.

For example, the Boulder Dam works will cost $125,000,000, to be financed by a Government bond issue, under the pending Swing-Johnson bill. But no bonds are to be issued and no work started until the Department of the Interior has secured contracts for the use of power and water, contracts, which will pay interest on the bonds and pay them off in fifty years. It will not cost the taxpayers a cent. They will be relieved by the addition of new taxpayers using the new electricity in factories and the new water on farms.

Instead of bond issues, this country has a simple way of providing finances for all these waterway improvements. It is a way worth considering.

We are to receive $200,000,000 a year from foreign governments in part payment of their war loans. At the present time, under the law, these receipts all go to retire Liberty Bond issues, in spite of the fact that we raise by taxation enough money to retire the whole issue in the next thirty years.

If half these receipts from foreign governments, namely $100,000,000 a year, were put into a revolving fund for waterway improvement, it would total $200,000,000 in two years, $500,000,000 in five years, and $1,000,000,000 in ten years. This is about as fast as the improvements could be built.

Pay the costs of these public works out of the revolving fund, to which interest and sinking fund payments would flow back from the projects as soon as complete. The billion dollars would thus finance many water projects without treasury or taxpayers having to bother about the matter.

Civilization began where men learned the intensive use of water: In Egypt on the banks of the Nile, and in Mesopotamia between the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers. The highest civilization in this country awaits our intensive use of our water for the ancient purposes of irrigation and commerce, and the modern purpose of hydro-electric power.

Secretary Hoover supplies us with the leadership of a skilled engineer. The country will follow him where it refused to follow the leadership of politicians.

'Smirching' a Record

Who Smirched Salem High's Record at Waltham? Not the Football Team

Thus early in the season the question whether football runs the school or the school merely tolerates football has been brought up in public and answered most decisively.

It took a brave man to deliver the answer and stand by his decision.

More than 1,500 Salem folk went to Waltham with the football eleven of Salem High School.

In the crowd—but not together—were Principal Maurice B. Smith, two members of the Salem School Committee and a football "star" who is under suspension because he walked out of a classroom without permission.

Towards the close of the third period of play, when it was apparent that Salem would be scored upon, one of the Salem school committeemen waited upon Principal Smith in the stand and asked that the suspended player be permitted to go in.

"It is impossible," ruled the principal, "he isn't eligible."

Acccording to Mr. Smith, the committeeman thereupon turned towards the Salem crowd, raised his hands, and called out, "He says 'No!'"

"This was the signal," the News of Salem says, "for the fans from Salem to HISS AND BOO THE PRINCIPAL." The hostile demonstration was long continued.

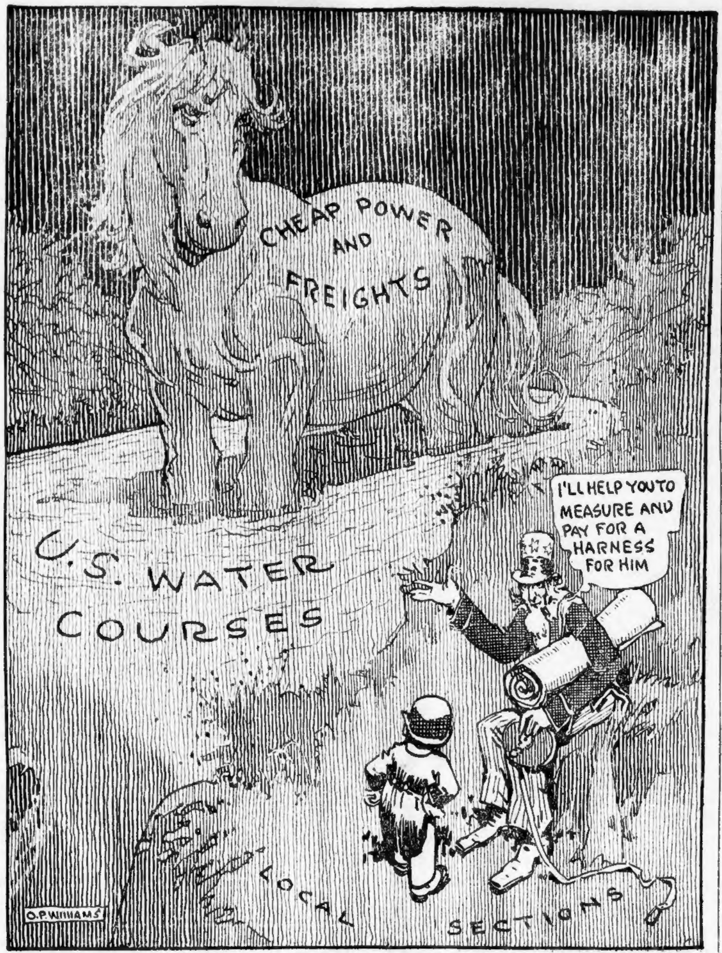
Waltham won the game, 6-0. It was Salem's first defeat in a scheduled contest in three years.

"Salem High's Grid Record Smirched by Waltham." So runs the headline in the local newspaper.

If there WAS any "smirching" of Salem's record, WE believe it was done by the thoughtless Salem folk who "hissed and booed" Maurice B. Smith, and on the facts as they are presented to us it is quite impossible to find the school committeeman altogether blameless.

Why Waste This Strength?

By O. P. Williams



THE editorial to the left tells how the cost of harnessing this immense unused potency, so that it may bring incalculable benefits to millions of Americans, can be met without increasing our tax bills.

It would be a good idea to read that editorial thoughtfully and start to make the public opinion which will be required to put the great improvement through.

LABOR'S OUTPUT PAYS WAGES

By DR. FRANK CRANE

IT is a good thing when the laboring man realizes that it is his output that pays the wages.

The difference between America and Europe, and the difference also between democracy and socialism, is that in America and under a democracy we realize that our wages come from our output, while in most of Europe and under socialism capital is supposed to pay the laborer.

Mr. Henry Ford's experiments have pretty well proved that if you can make a product excellent enough and make the price reasonable enough, it is easier to pay the laborer high wages.

The trouble with the miners in England is that they have not produced enough; consequently their wages were low.

The American working man excels the working man of other countries by his productivity.

The Department of Labor by its recent investigations shows that the output of American labor has increased and is increasing rapidly.

Thus in automobile making a man produced two hundred and ten per cent. more in 1924 than in 1914, in shoe manufacturing one hundred and seventeen per cent. more, and in iron and steel forty-nine per cent. more.

American labor is fortunate in that it has leaders who recognize where their money comes from.

All restrictions of output, damage to machinery, ca'canny and so forth, mitigate more and more against high wages.

It is a truth not apparent upon the surface, but none the less true, that high wages do not interfere with the low price of a product. The Ford company pays high wages and puts out a low-priced product.

High wages means a better quality of work and a more desirable output.

Even without a tariff excellent and well paid labor in America would have no difficulty in competing with the underpaid labor from abroad.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

ATHENS was proud a thousand years ago.

Wise men held council on the Hill of Mars and to them scholars came from every land bringing the wisdom of that ancient world. Great marble halls house galleries of art and parchments covered with all that the race then knew of art and science, music and philosophy.

And in the temples there were altars to a thousand gods. Gods of the harvest and the fishing streams. Fair gods of love, and scowling gods of war, gods of the dance and gods of good red wine Gods for the gladiator in his bloody pit, or for the mother dreaming of her child. A thousand gods, with incense burning on each shrine.

Yet for wise Athens, that was not enough. For Athens had a burning lust for Truth. And there were questions which they could not answer on the Hill of Mars. And mysteries no sybil could unveil. So to that Power which they sensed, but could not know, they built another shrine. And wrote upon that altar:

TO THE UNKNOWN GOD

Of all the wisdom for which Athens gained her fame, that was the wisest, noblest deed—that knowing so much, they should yet do reverence to the things they did not know.

I've been thinking of Athens today.

Forrest Neal made me think of it. Forrest has just graduated from college and is waiting for the world to recognize the fact. College did a great deal for Forrest—so he says. Not only did it give him much information, but look at all the trash and superstition it eliminated from his life. For instance, all the old religious superstition, particularly the belief in God.

"Life Force."

"Of course there's a certain charm to one's childish belief in God," says Forrest, "but it doesn't take much of a course in biology or philosophy to show you what bunk it all is. I admit I felt a little queer at first when I began to realize it—sort of lost. But I saw very soon that intelligent persons had to face the fact that there simply couldn't be a God. It's just the Life Force."

That is what Forrest has been telling me out of the vast wisdom of his twentieth century college education. And I've been wondering just how far we have progressed since those ancient, pagan days. And who are wiser—we, who lightly sweep God from the sky, or they who in their wisdom raised yet another altar—to the Unknown God?

This Life Force—just what is it, anyway?

We talk of it as glibly as though it were a patent medicine.

But what do we mean by it? What do we really know about it?

Does our flippant title explain honor or love or courage? Does it state the chemical constituents of the dream in the heart of a poet, or the wonder that turns a careless girl into a heroic mother? Does it explain music or analyze art or unveil the mystery of violets. Does it even explain the ecstatic wag of a little puppy's tail?

Glib Prattle

We're glib with our prattle of Glandular Reactions—Protoplasm—Evolution—but do we know enough to manufacture a baby mosquito, much less a full-fledged human? Could we have devised the crudest sunset or fabricated even a one-cylinder thunderstorm? Why, the smallest pinch of dust, with its infinite power and mystery, jeers at our effrontery!

And I rise today, as a patriotic American, to protest against the disgusting smartness of our "higher education." It is undoubtedly wise to keep theology out of our schools. But our wisdom is a cheap and shallow thing if it does not do reverence to the things we do not know—to the everlasting beauty and mystery which cannot be contained in any laboratory vial.

Meet the Shoebill

What a Political Talker He Would Make

ALL MOUTH, LITTLE BRAIN, BUT INTERESTING.

This strange bird, with a powerful heavy bill, bigger than all the rest of his head, can devour a pailful of fresh fish.

How does he impress you? You marvel at Nature's power to adapt animals to their surroundings. The feeble woodpecker can make holes in a tough tree trunk. The eagle and condor fly to the highest mountain tops. There is the accurate poem about the "pelican, his beak holds more than his belly can."

This shoebill, a strange bird, is as queer as any of them. You are impressed by his piercing eye, but, above all, you say to yourself, "What a wonderful political orator this bird would make, with a mouth bigger than the whole of his head put together, and one that would never tire."

Odds and Ends of the Town

Many a task that seems difficult is made surprisingly easy by prompt and determined action. Don't procrastinate.

DADDY OF SEVEN

"BOB" McHUGH, chauffeur for MAYOR NICHOLS, is passing out the cigars again. It's the seventh, and a bouncing boy. The gang at City Hall advise "BOB" to buy a cigar store. They say it would be cheaper. When "BOB" and MAMA McHugh call the roll now the lineup is James,13; Margaret 11; Robert 9; William 7; Gerald 5; Paul 3 and the latest rookie who has been heard but not named yet. Daddy is an L STREET swimming fan.

A TALENTED WOMAN

As an expert on city planning MISS ELISABETH M. HERLIHY, secretary of the City Planning Board of Boston, is in demand from MAINE to CALIFORNIA. Her advice has been sought in all parts of the country, especially in FLORIDA. MISS HERLIHY has such a wide personal acquaintance that when 200 residents of BEACON HILL apeared before the Zoning Adjustment Board to protest against a certain measure, she called each by name.

AN "EAGLE" SCREAMER

Meet the original "one man cheering section"—THOMAS J. HURLEY, chairman of the BOARD OF STREET COMMISSIONERS of BOSTON. At least that's what "TOM" sounds like when he's rooting for the "EAGLES." There isn't a more ardent football fan in Boston College Alumni.

"TOM" never misses a B. C. GAME, unless the Heights gladiators travel too far afield to suit the chairman's pressing duties. That's why he regerts he cannot take in the St. Louis contest when MAJOR CAVANAUGH'S crew meet the Jesuit Univeristy eleven. The walls of "TOM'S" office at CITY HALL are almost papered with clips telling of two victories over YALE and those scored over HOLY CROSS.

ELLIS STEAMING UP

No thrifty New England housekeeper is busier these days than HERBERT E. ELLIS, RENT AND HOUSING COMMISSIONER OF BOSTON. BERT is custodian of the comfort of thousands who live in apartment houses. He'll be on the hop with the first chill winds serving notice on apartment house owners and janitors that they must serve the proper amount of heat. And that's only one of multiple duties and problems.

A RARE SUNFLOWER

JAMES H. BOWDITCH, the well-known landscape gardener, and other experts have been much interested in a double-flowered sunflower known as the "F'ellanthus Californicus flori plene"—if this isn't right blame the compositor—raised by P. J. KELLEY of No. 633 Chestnut Hill avenue BROOKLINE. The flower is rare if not unknown this side of the Rockies. It grew from wild flower seeds. The stalk is eight feet hight and the leaves twelve inches in diameter. There are twelve huge blossoms on the main stalk and twelve smaller flowers.

The Great Pyramid

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

THE Great Pyramid legend still awes thousands of readers. I have had several letters lately from person whose imaginations have been fascinated by published statements concerning the mysterious "divine science" supposed to be locked up in that majestic pile of masonry on the bank of the Nile.

To prove that the pyramid was constructed "under the inspiration of God" it is affirmed, among other things, that "it stands within a few feet of the exact center of the earth's habitable area," and that it is "the only building in the world that is oriented exactly to the four points of the compass."

The first of these statements is purely fanciful, for it is impracticable to determine just where the "exact center of the earth's habitable area" lies. The mystifiers would have been wiser in asserting that the pyramid stands not "within a few feet of," but precisely at that center, since neither statement is open to experimental proof.

Unfortunately for them they did venture to be precise in the second statement—just where experimental proof is possible—and that proof has gone against them. Careful measurement shows that the pyramid is not oriented exactly to the four points of the compass.

Its orientation, however is surprisingly near to accordance with the cardinal points, thus furnishing proof not of divine inspiration, but of human imperfection Evidently a strenuous effort was made to have the pyramid stand exactly square, by celestial observation, which effort, of course, implies human, not divine, knowledge.

There is another thing bearing on the same question. The pyramid contains a long, narrow, straight passage, running from a secret chamber deep under the centre of the enormous pile, up through the masonry to an exit on the northern face.

Since the entire structure is plainly based on astronomical observations, this long, telescope-like tube directed northward can only have been associated with the axis of the apparent revolution of the heavens.

Examination shows that the point in the sky toward which the passage is directed corresponds with that which was occupied some two thousand years B. C. by a star known as Alpha Draconis, which star, at that time, served Polaris, or as Alpha Ursae Minoris, does today to indicate approximately the position of the pole of the heavens.
